Dinosaurs, Beware.
Individuality Will Count.
Obstinate Russia.
Kindness to Animals.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27.

IN THIS city is E. W. Edwards, head of the Fifth-Third Union Trust Company, of Cincinnati, one of Ohio's important banks.

Mr. Edwards, discussing conditions at the home of Col. Frank B. Shutts, owner of the Miami Herald, expressed the opinion that:

"Individuality and close individual attention to business will become more and more important under new conditions. And giant organizations that have outgrown themselves, as the old dinosaurs did, will become less important."

In fact, Mr. Edwards, a type of thinking American with a big back head, who reminds you of the late Marshall Field, of Chicago, believed that some very big industrial dinosaurs may feel the need of strong medicine.

DISCUSSING THE retirement of Mr. Wiggin from the great Chase National Bank in New York, Mr. Edwards remarked that Mr. Aldrich, head of that bank, is "the grandson of the Federal Reserve Act." According to Mr. Edwards it was the late Senator Aldrich, father of the Chase bank head, who invented and perfected the Federal Reserve plan, now the most valuable financial institution in this country.

When it was proposed by Senator Aldrich, a Republican, Democrats fought it, but when Woodrow Wilson came in, Democrats, helped by Republicans, made a reality of Senator Aldrich's idea.

The Federal Reserve is actually the late Senator Aldrich's work, but he did not live to see realized the full value of his idea.

MOST ANNOYING to our "best minds" is the fact that, for some mysterious reason, Russia's government refuses obstinately to "blow up and go to smash, demonstrating the fallacy of Soviet hopes."

Nobile, Italian airman and engineer, engaged by Stalin, is building six semi-metallic dirigible airships.

These dirigibles, to be called "The Lenin Squadron," will be used for "aerial surveys, inspections, exploration of forest and water routes, seed planting, wars on agricultural parasites and military maneuvers."

Gentlemen who object to being taxed for adequate air protection please consider that.

The Russians will not confine their airship activities to fighting "agricultural parasites." They will turn, when the time comes, against others that they describe as "capitalistic parasites."

Those particular "parasites," still necessary to this country's system and salvation, should persuade those whom they send to Washington that the next war will be an air war, that this country, poorly defended, is at the mercy of any big "Lenin air squadron" that might come sailing over Washington, New York, Boston, San Francisco, etc.

There is no menace in this little "Lenin squadron" of six semi-metallic dirigibles. In fact, they may be a blessing, if they awaken our national sleepy minds to the fact that a bank balance is no air protection.

AT FORT MYERS, Fla., a dog chased a kitten up a pine tree. The kitten, afraid to climb down, stayed aloft all day and all night. Men laughed, their wives did not.

Three of them, according to the Associated Press, told their husbands they would not eat a bite until they brought that kitten down. And they didn't eat while the kitten stayed in the tree, piteously meowing, for three days.

The husbands, worried, not about the suffering of the kitten, but about their hungry wives, called the fire department. The kitten was rescued, it and the three wives ate.

That is more important than it sounds, proving what needs no proof, that woman's kindness, the strange "moral superiority" that nature has planted in them, has gradually changed men from big-toothed, low-browed savages, to semi-civilized men.

ON CHRISTMAS, the president of the Consolidated Sportsmen of New Jersey sent an airplane "roaring over five counties," distributing 250 pounds of rye, wheat, millet, hempseed and corn to feed wild birds, rabbits, etc.

During the winter, 8,000 pounds more grain will be distributed, an intelligent, kindly action, no matter what the motive.

At the same time, it would seem strange if angels scattered food to keep us alive at Christmas, in order that they might come and shoot us later in the open season.

AMERICAN FARMERS may make up their minds that they will not sell much, if anything, to France, and our industrialists may reach the same conclusion.

The French, too intelligent to depend on others for help, are building dams on African streams to irrigate vast fertile tracts. One million acres in Northern Africa will be devoted to cotton. "The water from seasonal streams," sometimes dry, will be stored behind great dams for irrigation.

The Sahara, like our western deserts, will blossom as the rose when irrigated. Part of the irrigated lands will be used for grain. The energetic French are thoughtful, capable, prompt. We

INSULL WINS FREEDOM IN GREECE

High Court Refuses To Hold Utilities Czar for U. S.

By WILLIAM PARKER
International News Service.

ATHENS, Dec. 27.—Deciding that the accusations made against him are not punishable under the laws of this country, the Greek Court of Appeals tonight gave Samuel Insull his freedom.

The verdict of the court, returned only after two hours of deliberation, was interpreted as meaning that the former utilities magnate will remain beyond the law just as long as he remains in Greece.

In its decision, the court flatly rejected the demand of the Greek prosecutor that Insull be held accountable for charges of embezzlement and larceny made in the indictments returned against him in Chicago shortly after the collapse of his $2,000,000,000 utilities combine.

After hearing him condemned as an "adventurer who formed companies for the sole purpose of misappropriating funds and extolled as a "Prometheus who stole fire from the gods and gave it to the people," the Greek Court of Appeals came to an early decision.

Insull's attorneys based their arguments on the contention that the crimes charged against Insull are not punishable under Illinois law.

Fear of Tragedy Linked to Lost Shelby Fortune

MRS. CHARLOTTE SHELBY

Mary Miles Minter's Mother Testifying Against Broker

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—What strange "tragedy" threatened Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, mother of Mary Miles Minter, film star, early in 1928?

The shadows of the mysterious murder of William Desmond Taylor, film director, investigation of which involved the names of both Miss Minter and her mother for a time, had disappeared in 1928.

But some other sinister happening lurked in the offing, it was revealed today through disclosure of letters said to have been written by Mrs. Shelby from Paris, France, to Leslie B. Henry, Pasadena bond broker and civic leader.

Mrs. Shelby was expected to be the principal witness today as the county grand jury opened an investigation of the asserted loss of between $400,000 and $500,000 to Mrs. Shelby's securities account while it was under Henry's care.

A letter assertedly written at the time Mrs. Shelby and Miss Minter reached an understanding in their legal batle over the fortune earned by the star while she was a minor, disclosed Mrs. Shelby's fear of some "tragedy."

The letter was written to Henry from Paris, and stated that Miss Minter had changed her attitude and was "most affectionate." Then came a more dismal note:

"How I wish we had sold the Casa for anything. I am afraid she will try to bring you into the suit."

"However, she may find things in too serious a condition to sue me again. What if anything happened to H.? Where would we be? What a mess! What a tragedy!"

U. S. LEADERS URGE 'BUY AMERICAN'

Plan to Stimulate Home Industry Supported

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27—"Buy American" was urged today as a patriotic duty by congressional leaders.

The campaign to stimulate American industry, keep American money in America and provide employment for American citizens drew enthusiastic support.

It was agreed a great stride would be taken toward revival of prosperity if American citizens bought the products of American farms and factories.

Reports of the Commerce Department showed that for the 1931-32 fiscal year imports into the United States totaled $1,731,000,000. During the previous year the total was $2,432,000,000.

TOURIST SPENDING

These figures, however, do not furnish a complete picture. The department reported that so-called "invisible" transactions, constituting an important part of American international business, represented a total turnover of about $2,500,000,000 in the last calendar year. American tourists spend large sums abroad annually.

Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee, said:

"I think the proposal to 'buy American' is an excellent idea.

SAN SIMEON, Cal., Dec. 25, 1932.

To the Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph:

Please campaign vigorously for the following patriotic policies and try to express and crystallize popular sentiment for the information of the incoming administration and for the best benefit of the nation:

1 Buy American and spend American. See America first. Keep American money in America and provide employment for American citizens.

2 Encourage Pan-American reciprocity, consuming Pan-American raw materials and opening the markets of North and South America to our manufactured products, while providing work for our unemployed.

3 Develop our merchant marine to serve our trade in times of peace and supplement our Navy in time of war. The building and manning of ships makes jobs for the jobless.

4 Encourage American air fleets to cover our country and connect us more intimately with other countries of North and South America. The more enterprise, the more work, and the more work, the more prosperity.

5 Encourage our railroads to make transcontinental extensions and transcontinental combinations and to co-operate with steamship lines to connect our industry with world markets. The more industry, the more employment, and the more employment, the more prosperity.

6 Complete east and west and also north and south transcontinental automobile highways, sixty feet wide, to encourage and accommodate "see America" traffic and to provide work and wages for the unemployed.

7 Complete federal flood control of Mississippi River and Colorado River and other rivers whose overflow is a menace to the lives and property of adjoining communities, thus benefitting the nation and providing work for the unemployed.

8 Complete inland waterways projects providing various sections of the country with water communication and the equivalent of sea coasts, thus knitting the nation together and providing work for the unemployed.

9 Complete all necessary developments of rivers and harbors, encouraging shipping and consequent commerce, providing work for the unemployed and stimulating the revival of prosperity.

10 Complete all possible water conservation and power development projects, increasing the wealth and resources of the nation and providing work for the unemployed.

The distribution of wealth in wages is the basis of all prosperity. Let the government inaugurate and vigorously prosecute during the period of this depression the campaign to buy in America, spend in America, see America, and keep American money in America. Then let every patriotic citizen follow the course the government inspiringly leads.

BULLETIN.

Councilman Michael J. Muldowney will offer a resolution to Council asking the Mayor to include in the list of empolyes to be dismissed from the various city departments under the new budget all men eligible for pensions and that every effort be made to retire such men, prior to the dismissal of other employes.

COUNTY OFFERS BUDGET AID

The County Commissioners today came to the aid of City Council in its efforts to balance the budget.

The Commissioners voted to offer to take over, without cost, all work done by the city's Bureau of Weights and Measures, thus allowing the city to eliminate that bureau.

Chairman C. C. McGovern announced:

"We don't want any lengthy conferences or any exchange of patronage. If this doesn't meet with the city's approval we may have to drop a few of the employes in our department."

REDFERN CLUE BOLSTERED

Mrs. Paul Redfern, young wife of the Pittsburgh aviator who disappeared five years ago on an attempted nonstop flight to Brazil, today received the "most welcome Christmas gift" in her life in an Associated Press dispatch to the Sun-Telegraph partially corroborating the rumor that her husband has been found living as the captive king of South American Indians.

Charles Hasler, an explorer and engineer, reported in Para, Brazil, yesterday, according to the dispatch, he had heard rumors that Redfern is living with docile and semi-civilized Indians in the Rio Madeira region near the borders of the Brazilian states of Amazonas and Matto Grosso.

This is the region where Mrs. Redfern and the aviator's father, Dr. Frederick C. Redfern, of Raleigh, N. C., have felt all along he would be found, the wife revealed today at her office in the National Supply Company, where she is employed as a secretary. She said:

"We had some idea Paul was in that section. I surely hope something comes from it."

It was announced recently that that an expedition would be sent into the jungle to search for the missing men.

PARTIES FIGHT STATE PRIMARY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger today says that leaders of several factions in the Republican and Democratic parties are uniting in a move to abolish the direct primary system of nominating candidates for office.

The Ledger quotes State Senator Samuel W. Salus as saying that the "system has been given a fair trial and has been found not only worthless but positively harmful. It keeps the best class of candidates off the ticket and has made expenditure of large sums of money absolutely unavoidable when there is any kind of contest."

He said there is considerable sentiment among members of the legislature for a return of the old convention system.

'Old Soak' Brightens Stimson Christmas

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—"The Old Soak," Secretary Stimson's pet parrot, was taken to the Stimson home from the Washington zoo before Christmas to spend the holidays with the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson. The Secretary said today:

DOCTOR SAVES 400 ILL AT SEA

GLASGOW, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—A dramatic story of how a ship's doctor battled four days and nights without sleep to overcome an influenza epidemic at sea was told today following the arrival of the liner Cameronia from New York.

Dr. Daniel Murphy, staging a heroic fight without help, prevented a single death, although 400 of the ship's 900 passengers were stricken with the disease.

The epidemic broke out shortly after the ship left New York on December 14. High seas aggravated the illness among the victims, many of whom were women and children.

Four days and nights Dr. Murphy spent visiting the victims, averaging 500 visits a day. His ministrations were so efficient that when the ship reached port all but a few of the passengers had recovered. The doctor, however, was so exhausted he was sent to bed.

Hold Wife for Baking Baker in His Oven

ROME, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Annunciata Giacolono, a baker's wife, reposed in jail today, charged with attempting to bake her husband to death.

Said Hunter:

Rudy Booed, Revelers Fight at College Hop

Six arrests, broken windows, fights in the corridors and a round booing for Rudy Vallee were revealed today in the post-mortem of the intercollegiate ball celebrated last night in the William Penn Hotel.

Rudy didn't like is very much. The crooner was giving an imitation of Maurice Chevalier when the merrymakers interrupted their dancing to let him know what they thought of the impersonation.

So Vallee quit being Chevalier. And after that anybody woh asked him for his autograph met a decisive refusal.

The William Penn Hotel was recovering, so to speak, from widespread attacks on its furnishings. House Detective Harry Roth testified at police court that all through the hotel celebrators had allowed their destructive tendencies to gain the upper hand.

Six young men faced "His Honor" today.

John Coates, 19, of Forward avenue, George Sondecker, 19, of Tilbury street, and Nathan Gendelberg, 20, of Douglas avenue, were discharged after they agreed to reimburse the hotel for $23 worth of damage to one room.

Paul J. Kane, law student at Pitt; W. J. Walsh, student at George Washington University, and J. J. Brown, 36, a ticket collector at the dance, were each fined $5 after Detective Roth told of finding the three in a fight in the hotel.

Nothing was said at the hearing of the fire hose valves which were reported to have been opened on many of the floors, allowing water to shoot through the corridors.

SALES TAX SEEN AS DEMOCRATS MOVE TO BALANCE BUDGET

FORMER FOES SWINGING TO SUPPORT

Repeal of 'Nuisance' Levies Forecast by Leaders

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Enactment of a general manufacturers' excise, or sales tax to balance the federal budget appeared more likely today than at any time since the proposed levy was defeated last year.

The decision of Democratic leaders to balance the budget in the present session, the Treasury's advocacy of the plan and change of attitude of former opponents all contributed to make adoption of the tax possible.

URGED BY LEADERS

Both Democratic and Republican leaders in fiscal affairs in the House declare the general sales tax is the only source of revenue, outside of liquor taxes, to which the federal government can turn with assurance that it will get needed funds.

A further possibility of sales tax legislation is seen in repeal of 3-cent postage, 2-cent check tax, 10 per cent amusement levy and similar taxes.

There is a possibility that a new "soak the rich" campaign may be invoked in fight against the sales tax, but this is discounted by the fact that millionaires' incomes are dwindling rapidly.

Gov. Roosevelt is reported to have informed Democratic leaders here that he favors immediate balancing of the budget. The Governor is reported to favor a bond issue to pay for capital expenditures.

HUGE SUM NEEDED

Estimating that $500,000,000 will be needed to balance the budget next year, Chairman Collier (Dem.) of Mississippi of the House ways and means committee said:

"I have looked over the field of taxation and can find nothing but a sales tax. I would support this tax as a last resort, and we may have to have it. We are going to balance the budget."

Speaker John N. Garner of the House, declared today he would favor a general manufacturers' excise tax if necessary to balance the budget.

Disclaiming any intention of attempting to dictate to the Ways and Means Committee Garner reiterated his plea for congressional action to end the Treasury deficits in the belief it will promote business recovery.

A general sales tax offers "the only way to raise the needed revenue to balance the budget," Senator Smoot (Rep.) of Utah, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee declared today.

PREDICT UNITED DEBTORS' DRIVE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(Universal.)—A concerted drive for postponement or a moratorium on the June 15 war debt payments is expected here to be the next move by European debtor nations.

Officials said such a contingency would have to be handled by the Roosevelt administration, which, before June, will have had the opportunity of studying the debts, the world economic conference and disarmament.

The administration is marking time, awaiting some word from France regarding its defaulted installment and the outcome of the conference between President-elect Roosevelt and Norman H. Davis, American arms delegate, and a member of the committee arranging for the world economic conference.

PARIS, Dec. 27. — (INS.) — Though France defaulted on its December war debt payment to the United States, the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies today approved a loan to Austria of 100,000,000 schillings (about $14,000,000).

Henri Cheron, minister of finance, urged approval of the loan on the ground that France must honor her word, given at Lausanne, to participate in a $40,000,000 international loan to Austria.

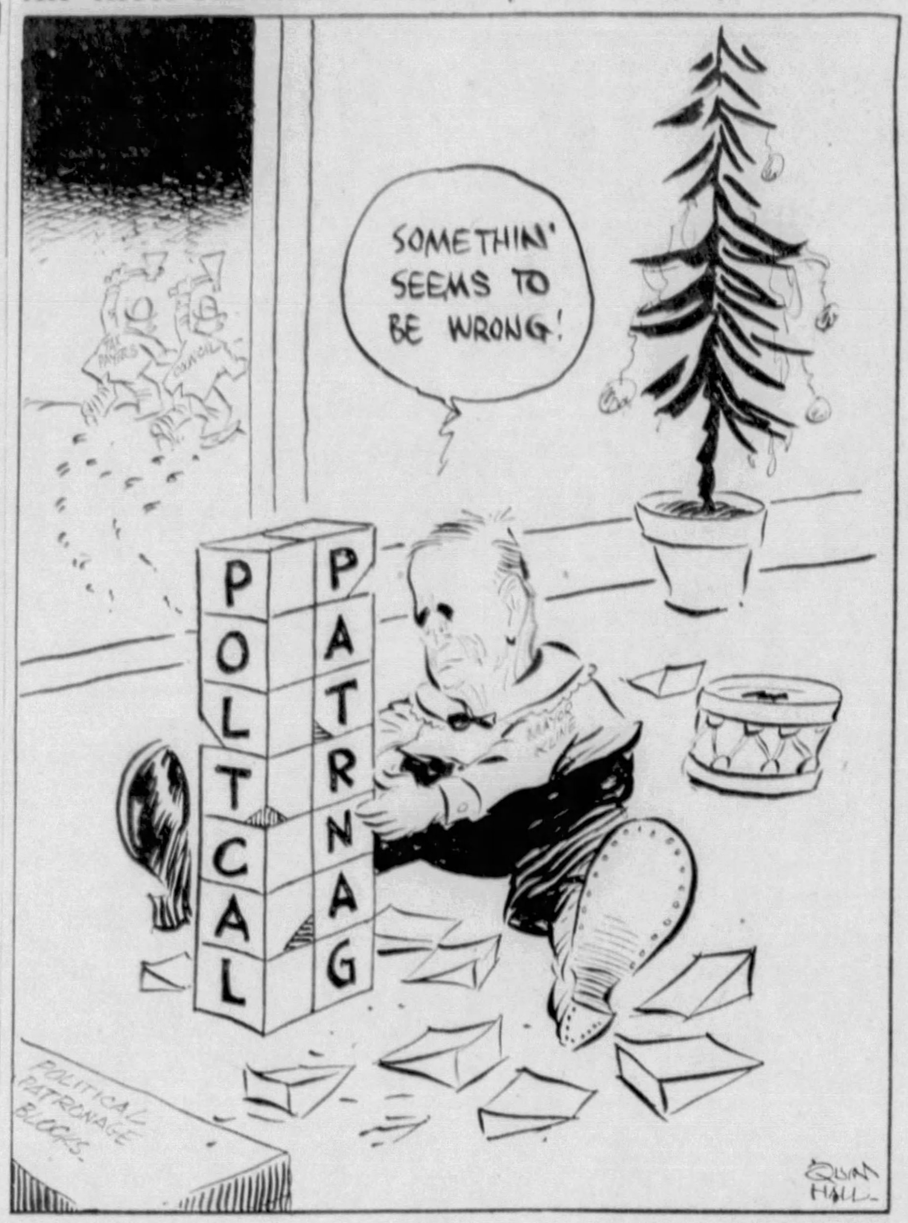
An After-Christmas Discovery -:- By QUIN HALL



SCHOOL BOARD IS SCORED

"so far we have received no constructive suggestions."

The realtors reply:

"The suggestions made to your board by us were constructive, notwithstanding your decision to ignore them. Had they been adopted the budget for next year could have been reduced by one mill with perfect safety."

The realtors then presented a school budget which would provide for a one-mill tax reduction. In this the school board's own figures are used in all but two instances, the Real Estate Board figuring 77 per cent tax collections for next year against the school board's 75 per cent and using $1,102,110 out of surplus as against $400,000 figured by the school board.

SPENDING OF SURPLUS

The unexpended balance in the general fund of the school board, according to the realtors, is $1,132,455. Regarding this balance, the realtors say:

"Any surplus the Board of Education may have should be used, and in times like the present every effort should be put forth by the board to give the taxpayers all the relief possible."

The figure of 77 per cent tax collections for next year is 1 per cent less than the figure approved by the Finance Committee of City Council.

In regard to the administrative expenses of the school board, which are entirely under control of the school board, the realtors say:

"We feel that even a casual examination will show that the number of employes has not been reduced to meet this time of stress, and that salaries paid are entirely out of proportion to those paid by private enterprise for similar service."

BUDGET CHANGE SEEN

A delay of at least another day in the final passage of the 1933 city budget, was seen today in the announcement from an authoritative source that the salaries bills reducing the budget are to be amended this afternoon at Council's budget session.

At least one job will be restored to the Bureau of Traffic Planning and several inspectors will be allowed to remain in the Fire Prevention Bureau, under the amendments, it was reported. All inspectors were eliminated in the original bill.

Mayor Charles H. Kline is understood to be ready to sign the bills promptly.

If the Mayor signs by Thursday, two days will be available to set up the new salary schedules for 1933 and notify the holders of 900 city jobs that their positions no longer exist.

PISTOL FINDER MAY GO WEST

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 27.—If satisfactory terms can be reached, James Fike, well driller who drew the Donohoe murder gun from the bed of the Monongahela River and a half dozen revolvers used in an Allegheny County killing from the same stream, will leave within a few days for Long Beach, Cal., to search for the gun used in the Wanderwell killing.

Deputy District Attorney Clarence Hunt, of Long Beach, wired Fike for terms to search for the Wanderwell mystery weapon, which is believed to lie at the bottom of the bay.

If his proposition is accepted, Fike will ship his 400-pound magnet encased in which are eight miles of wire.

Auto Registrations In State Decrease

HARRISBURG, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—When the Bureau of Motor Vehicles opened today, 134,642 fewer registrations had been issued than on the corresponding date last year. The bureau has issued 818,102 registrations to date.

'BUY AMERICAN' MOVE LAUDED

Other countries have formed trade agreements favoring them at our expense, and Great Britain has adopted the "Buy British' slogan to her advantage."

Representative Hawley, of Oregon, ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee and formerly its chairman, said:

"The movement to 'Buy American' is based on sound reasoning. Under such a policy our money would stay in America for the development of America and supply jobs for Americans.

AMERICAN STANDARD

"Over one-half of the costs of manufacture are labor costs. If we are going to maintain our American standard of living we will have to buy American-made goods.

"Our producers are consumers. To the extent that our people buy foreign-made goods they are throwing our own people out of work.

"Ninety per cent of our production is consumed in America. We should not sacrifice this 90 per cent for the foreign market which takes only 10 per cent.

"It would not be necessary to have the tariff if other nations had the same standard of living as the United States. If we were all equal in that respect, American ingenuity would be superior."

SENATORS SEE 3.2 PCT. BEER AS LEGAL

Believe High Court Will Sustain Collier Bill

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—The United States Supreme Court will hold a 3.2 per cent beer bill constitutional under the Eighteenth Amendment, according to the opinions held today by a majority of the lawyers of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Believing the legislation constitutional, members of the Judiciary Committee will try to report the Collier bill, just passed by the House, to the Senate early in the new year. This would insure a prompt vote in the Senate on beer, unless drys carry out their hinted threats to filibuster.

VETO RUMORS

Rumors of a presidential veto failed to dampen the ardor of beer advocates. They insisted upon pressing the legislation to a final vote, even if President Hoover vetoes it. They realize that a veto would kill the bill, since the House cannot muster a two-thirds beer majority.

There were indications the judiciary committee would find no trouble in dealing with the constitutionality of the measure. Such eminent lawyers as Senator Norris, (Rep.) of Nebraska, chairman; Senator Blaine, (Rep.) of Wisconsin; Senator Black, (Dem.) of Alabama, and Senator Ashurst, (Dem.) of Arizona, agreed Congress has the power to legalize 3.2 per cent beer. They agreed the Supreme Court would not set aside any measure legalizing it.

TO REWRITE BILL

In order to present a more favorable constitutional issue to the courts, the Judiciary Committee very likely will rewrite the Collier bill. Its new form probably will be to repeal all sections of the Volstead Act. Touching upon alcoholic content of liquors and insert a new provision in the law, legalizing beer while prohibiting the manufacture, sale and transportation of all other beverages, containing more than one-half of one per cent alcohol.

Senate lawyers declare Congress has the right to prohibit use and sale of whisky. Such a law, they contended, would legalize all beer—so far as the federal government is concerned—and its constitutionality could not be attacked in the courts. If empowered to legalize all beer, the Senators hold, they can legalize 3.2 per cent beer.

While committee members discussed beer, the drive for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment lagged, due to the absence of several members of the Blaine subcommittee, now engaged in drafting a constitutional amendment.

HURT AT GAME, PEGGY SUES

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(Universal.)—Now that she has had a taste of court, Peggy Lawton Rich, who last week unsuccessfully defended a divorce action brought by her orchestra leader husband, Freddie Rich, apparently has acquired a taste for legal matters.

She has filed suit for $50,000 against Madison Square Garden and the Rangers hockey team, it was revealed today.

Mrs. Rich declares she was struck by a hockey stick as she sat in an unprotected arena seat on the night of December 13, 1931. She says the stick, which slipped from the hands of "Bun" Cook, of the Rangers, inflicted a five and a half-inch cut in her head, necessitating her stay in Polyclinic Hospital for three weeks.

Mrs. Rich charges the injury caused part of her hair to become noticeably lighter. The case is scheduled for hearing January 15.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Striking at the holders of monetary wealth in the United States, Representative LaGuardia (Rep.), of New York, today sponsored a joint resolution reducing by 29 per cent the interest rate on all outstanding bonded indebtedness of the country. He said:

"Placing capital on a five-day week is the aim of the bill. Its purpose is to call attention to the high interest rates of money which are responsible for prolonging the depression and preventing any permanent solution of our economic difficulties."

ROOSEVELT AIRS VIEWS ON ARMS TO DAVIS

Curb on Weapons of Offense Is Goal of Both Men

International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 27.—President-elect Roosevelt today prepared to wind up the affairs of New York State, convinced that in conversations with Norman H. Davis, Hoover envoy to the Geneva arms conference, he had outlined his views on disarmaments as well as on world economics.

Davis, a member of the American delegation to the conference and a major factor in the committee organizing the international economic conference at London this year, was an overnight guest at the executive mansion where the Governor is combining the task of winding up his gubernatorial duties with those of the national and international problems which will face him after March 4.

LONG CONFERENCE

Davis discussed from 2 a. m. until 2 p. m. the European problems he believes the next President will meet. Among other things, they discussed the desirability of limitation of offensive warfare. Davis, who is expected to remain as arms delegate under the incoming President, was said to agree with Mr. Roosevelt that disarmament can be achieved best by building up the defensive arms of the various nations at the expense of their offensive weapons.

Although the President-elect disagreed with Mr. Hoover over the advisibility of appointing a joint commission to take up the international debt situation, he has made no attempt to disguise his approval of the preliminary steps taken by President Hoover toward disarmament.

ROOSEVELT PLEASED

The President-elect was satisfied that in Davis he had established a major link between the old and the new national administration on the question of disarmament. Davis appeared to agree entirely with the Roosevelt view on limitation of offensive weapons of war. Both men, it was said, feel the limitation of aircraft, bombers, submarine power, poisonous gas and mobile field artillery—will strengthen the defensive strength of nations and thereby come closer to the sterility of war than could be attained by any other means.

After his talk with Davis, Mr. Roosevelt referred to a conversation that he had had with France's wartime premier, Clemenceau. He stressed the fact that the French are more concerned with preventing an invasion by Germany than they are with any thought of attacking that country.

Mr. Roosevelt interrupted his Christmas holiday to confer with Davis because the latter wishes to convey the views of the President-elect to Prof. Day, economic expert of the American delegation, before Day sails for Europe tomorrow.

Bulgarian Rebels Attack Greek Guard

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Reports were received today that Bulgarian revolutionary bands, besides trying to blow up the European express train yesterday, invaded Greek territory and attacked frontier guards.

Today

might learn a great deal from them.

AT MURCIA, Spain, fire caused by defective electric wiring destroyed a beautiful group of sixteenth century sacred images, arranged in the Misericordia Church by Jesuit Brother Domingo Beltran.

Spain, like Mexico and some other Catholic countries, developing recently strange antagonism to religion, will probably call the destructive fire "proof" that Divine Providence is not even strong enough to take care of its own images."

But that will not convince devout Spanish peasants. They will observe that those images were soon to be sacreligiously removed from the church where they have stood so long and exhibited in a museum in unsuitable surroundings.

What more clear than that miraculous power destroyed them, to save them from a disgraceful fate?

OUR "BEST minds" asking each other "what do you think?" will be interested in the thinking of Lord Melchett, able Britisher. He says:

"The Socialist doctrine of a class war is all buncombe. We are emerging from a chaotic condition of industrial affairs and must have an orderly planned system."

He demands "an economic chamber of Parliament" to plan industrial development on scientific lines.

Industrial development, with big competing units "rounding out," creating unnecessary competing productive power, will have to be regulated in this country also.

But, to use Wall street's language, we shall have to take a "worse licking" before we get around to it.

'HAPPIEST CHRISTMAS' THRILLS DOOMED WOMAN'S SON

SNIPES FAMILY HOLDS PRISON REUNION

Unaware of Parents' Plight, Boy Exults Over Gifts

By JOHN K. AULL
International News Service.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 27.—Although it was enacted in the shadow of death and tragedy at the South Carolina Penitentiary here, the happiest Christmas that Clyde Snipes, Jr., 5, ever has known, today left him still thrilled.

Clyde saw his mother, Mrs. Beatrice Ferguson Snipes, expectant mother, under sentence of execution in the electric chair, and his father, who is serving a seven-month sentence, in a family reunion at the penitentiary Sunday.

MANY AID SANTA

Earlier in the day, the youth awoke at the home of his uncle to find himself in a veritable fairyland of toys from every section of the country after publication of news stories that Santa Claus probably would not visit him unless outsiders aided.

The boy, who does not realize that his parents are in jail, and his mother condemned to die, spent a joyous hour talking to them in Supt. John Pearman's office at the prison.

He knows the penitentiary only as "that big building."

Supt. Pearman permitted the boy's father to attend the little family reuinon clad in a plain business suit instead of the customary prison garb. Mrs. Snipes wore a dress of imitation velvet.

Then little Clyde and his mother went to the women's dormitory, where a large Christmas tree had been placed for the women prisoners. The boy found a number of gifts on the tree for him and several for his mother. He exclaimed:

"Gee whiz! I got almost a hundred at home, too."

The only melancholy note came at the parting, when Clyde, his arms loaded with toys, asked:

"When are you coming home, mother?"

She turned her head away and made no reply.

FAMILY FETES JAILED TATES

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Jail bars—lifted briefly for a reunion yesterday of the widow and the sons and daughters of Isley Tate—again stand between them today as the boys await sentence for killing and robbing their father.

Riding in a truck, Mrs. Tate and her nine daughters came to the jail yesterday, carrying baskets of fried chicken, cookies, cakes and other dishes. It was a surprise for the three youths, Sam, 15; George, 19, and John, 21.

In a jail corridor, the feast was spread out by a trusty on the prison benches. Mrs. Tate was permitted to spend about an hour with the boys.

Judge S. John Morrow, before whom the youths have pleaded guilty, has their case under advisement.

SEARCH MINE FOR 14 BODIES

MOWEAQUA, Ill., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Rescue workers today began a grisly quest in the north wing of the shattered Moweaqua mine where a gas explosion Saturday trapped 54 men, for 14 men whose bodies were still in the workings 700 feet below the surface of the earth. Forty bodies already have been brought out.

Seals placed on the entrance of the wing Saturday to bottle up the fumes were broken at midnight. The shaft was ventilated until 9 a. m. Weary comrades of the entombed men resumed their search, finding one body in the passageway outside the wing.

The search might take days, officials said. Rocks, dirt and timbers had to be tunneled through, pushed aside or laboriously excavated as the rescuers bored toward the missing men.

Immediate relief for the bereaved was the pressing need of the little coal community. A committee planned to visit Gov. Emmerson in Springfield in hope of expediting aid.

DENTIST KILLER ENDS LIFE

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 27.—(Universal.)—Sought since last Friday for the murder of Mrs. Josephine Elder, his 71-year-old patient, Dr. Squire Pomerow Bevier, 60, a dentist, was found shot to death yesterday in the back seat of an old car in his garage. A note, by the body, said:

"This is December 25. It's the end of a perfect day. I am going to get myself before they get me."

Police Chief Joseph A. Cerk said the note also described a quarrel between the dentist and the aged woman over some dental work. She had demanded her money back and scratched him, whereupon he beat her to death with a dentist's laboratory mallet, according to the note.

She was found dead Friday in her office.

YULE TREE FIRE ROUTS TWO FAMILIES

Man Dazed by Smoke Carried Down Ladder

One man dazed by smoke was carried from his apartment by firemen early today when fire caused by Christmas tree lights partially wrecked the living room furnishings of Thomas R. Casey, in the Murray-Beacon apartment, at 1914 Murray avenue.

J. B. Quinlan, 36, a guest of the Caseys, was carried down a ladder by firemen after Casey had escorted his wife, Mary, and two children, Thomas, aged 1 year, and Mary Jane, 3, to safety.

FAMILY ROUTED

Joseph B. Cook, his wife and child, occupying an adjoining apartment, were forced to vacate their home by smoke.

Firemen estimated the damage to the Casey apartment at $500. The Christmas tree and the children's toys were destroyed.

Casey is a son of Patrick F. Casey, deputy sheriff and Republican chairman of the Fourteenth Ward.

Hoseman Harry Friedman, of Engine Company No. 1, suffered slight burns to his hand early today when members of his company responded to a still alarm at the Lynn F. Beittler Company, 11 First avenue, manufacturers of fire prevention appliances and extinguishers.

RADIATOR DAMAGED

Friedman was burned when he placed his hands on an overheated radiator. The damage, confined to the radiator, was estimated at $15.

The home of Baird Holmes, of 708 Durango street, was damaged $3,000 by fire early yesterday. The fire originated in a frame building of the Brushton Coal Company at 715 Brushton avenue, and communicated to the Holmes home.

THOMPSON KIN IN COAL DEAL

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 27.—The biggest coal land deal here in years has been revealed by the transfer of 7,000 acres of coal and 500 acres of surface in Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia to E. Kenneth Jenkins, of Warrenton, Va., for $1, by the Semans Syndicate Inc.

Jenkins gave the corporation a lien of $250,000 on the property in addition to whatever cash passed in the deal.

Speculation was rife here on the meaning of the deal. Jenkins is a grandnephew of Josiah V. Thompson. Some of the coal involved in the tract is said to have been owned by Thompson and I. W. Semans, prior to the crash of Thompson, a number of years ago. The Semans Syndicate is said to have owned the coal for a dozen years or more.

The coal is located in Fayette, Greene and Washington counties, Pennsylvania and Marshall, Harrison and Wetzel counties in West Virginia.

Thompson in numerous court appearances had asked for delays, urging the near approach of a big coal land deal as a reason.

M'GOVERN ASKS BALLOT GUARD

To prevent election thieves from holding a "second election," Commissioner Charles C. McGovern wants the county to collect and store ballot boxes immediately after the election boards complete their count.

After asking Special County Solicitor M. B. Lesher for an opinion on the legality of collecting and storing the boxes McGovern said:

"They should be brought in and stored to keep thieves from having a second election. We also need an opinion on what to do with the contents of the boxes before the next election. We are going to have voting machines shortly, but we will need boxes in case of an emergency."

McGovern's remarks resulted from a bill from Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar for $750 pay to special deputies for guarding boxes. He said he had been paying deputies $5 a day for several weeks, against a previous wage of $7.50. The bill was held up when Commissioner W. D. Mansfield wanted to know how the pay was fixed and McGovern's rejoinder that the high rate named by Gollmar never was paid.

MELLON TELLS PLANS TO QUIT PUBLIC LIFE

Ambassador Enjoys Quiet Holiday at Home Here

Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon plans to retire from public life after March 4.

He does not expect to take any part in Pennsylvania politics after giving up his post at the Court of St. James.

Mr. Mellon regards European debts as controversial subjects and is refraining, during his holiday season in America, from discussing them for publication.

These things he indicated in the quiet of his Woodlawn road home, where he is spending the Christmas season with his son, Paul Mellon. He will sail on the Majestic, January 4, for London, to resume his duties at the American embassy.

EXPECTS TO RETIRE

Asked concerning his future plans he remarked:

"I expect to retire from public life after I have completed the term of my present appointment."

The Ambassador indicated that when his work is completed at London, he will be privileged to devote his time to private interests.

Mr. Mellon was reminded of published reports that when he came to Pittsburgh he might say something about Pennsylvania politics. Asked if he intends to take part in Republican affairs of the state, he replied:

"Not unless it is necessary. You see, I will be 78 March 24. I do not expect to be very active in political affairs."

On the subject of European debts he said:

"These are controversial questions and I cannot discuss them."

His eyes sparkled as he explained that to discuss them might result in newspapers at home and abroad carrying headlines which would be misunderstood.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Regarding the business outlook, Mr. Mellon passed the question off by saying:

"Sometimes it looks better, and then it looks otherwise. Really, I have nothing to say about it."

It was apparent from his encouraging manner that he was optimistic, although he spoke with caution.

Ambassador Mellon is keenly interested in painting and tapestries. Concerning these he remarked:

"My finest paintings and tapestries are in the embassy at London."

He said that his daughter, Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, did not accompany him to America, since his stay here was to be of short duration.

The Ambassador said that it has been his custom to spend Christmas at home and returned to America for that reason. He came downtown today to attend private business.

DISCORD LOOMS TO SLOW UP ASSEMBLY

HARRISBURG, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—One week from today 257 men and women—state senators and representatives—come here for the one hundred and thirtieth session of the General Assembly.

The legislators will begin immediate consideration of state finances, governmental economy, prohibition, unemployment relief, election laws, public utility regulation and blue law modification.

Next Monday night the Republican and Democratic legislators will meet in caucuses to nominate candidates for three House and four Senate offices. These are president pro tempore, secretary, chief clerk and librarian of the Senate, and Speaker, chief clerk and resident clerk of the House.

TUESDAY MEETING

At noon next Tuesday the Legislature will convene. Officers will be elected, employes will be appointed, new members and re-elected members will take their oaths of office and the Governor will read his initial message to the legislators.

The Legislature may reconvene Wednesday to receive a flood of bills estimated to range in number from 200 to 400, or this may be postponed two weeks. At any rate, the usual January recess of two weeks for appointment of committees and personnel will be barred this year in an effort to have a businesslike and efficient session, the biennial hope of legislators, seldom realized.

Although the usually great Republican majorities in both House and Senate were affected by the recent election, the G. O. P. still has enough strength to organize the Legislature.

DISCORD LOOMS

All will not be harmony in the Republican ranks, however. There are indications that there will be a bitter fight over the question of appointment of committees.

Independent Republicans and the Democratic bloc will seek to strip Speaker Talbot of the traditional right to appoint committees, setting up instead a committee on committees. The committee would represent all factions in the House and would be elected by the House.

The organization Republican bloc will oppose this move. The result of the fight will give a fair indication of the respective strengths and alignment of the various political groups.

Should this Independent-Democratic move fail, they will seek to amend the House rules by providing that a committee may be discharged from consideration of a bill by vote of 60 members instead of 105 as at present.

LONG SESSION SEEN

This committee on committees proposal is not new. In 1913 it was used by Independent Republicans to control the House after they had been swept into office on the backwash of the Roosevelt Bull Moose movement in the 1912 presidential election. Two years later the rule was rescinded and the Speaker regained his full power.

Because of the similarity between the makeup of the present Legislature and that of 1913 and because of the importance and number of issues pending solution, observers believe that the coming session will not adjourn until July, setting an endurance record.

NOTE REVEALS WIFE MURDER

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A confession that he poisoned his wife to be free to live with another woman was written by Sidney J. Hawks, 38, an unemployed salesman who committed suicide yesterday.

In the 15-page note, now in the hands of the coroner, Hawks declared the other woman, identified only as "Helen," helped him plan the slaying, then deserted him when his money was exhausted. He told of spending $1,500, available from his wife's insurance policy, on Helen and her family.

Hawks expressed regret at having taken the life of "as pure and decent a woman as God ever let live," the mother of his three children.

Mrs. Hawks died July 26, 1931, the death being attributed by a physician to acute dilation of the heart. Hawks' note revealed that the two plotters substituted poison for medicine in capsules Mrs. Hawks was taking.

Gen. Hans Kundt, German military expert, left for the front to take charge of 20,000 Bolivian troops in a new offensive. He was acclaimed wildly by civilians as he left.

Sioux Chief Ends Mother-in-Law Issue in Tribe

CLEVELAND, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A "perfect solution" of the "mother-in-law problem" is credited by Chief Wi-Hi-Ni-Pa, grand-nephew of Sitting Bull, with keeping divorce at a minimum among the Indians.

The chief, who is an Ogallalla Sioux, is visiting Cleveland, en route to Austria to attend a Boy Scout jamboree. The chief explained:

"A brave never speaks to his mother-in-law except through his wife. The wife's mother is not even allowed to look at her son-in-law. That may be one reason why there is no such thing as divorce among my people."

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

'DICK' REYNOLDS ENGAGED

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Dec. 27. — (INS.) — The boyhood romance of Richard Joshua Reynolds, Jr., eldest heir and only surviving son of the late tobacco magnate, has culminated in announcement of his engagement to Elizabeth McCaw Dillard, of this city.

Announcement of the engagement was made by Mr. and Mrs. John L. Dillard, parents of the girl. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Dillard, a member of the Junior League and popular in the younger smart social set, attended Sweetbriar College, at Sweetbriar, Va. She toured Europe in 1930 and the West Indies last year.

Reynolds and Miss Dillard have known each other from childhood. Their romance, acquaintances said, really developed after Reynolds hurried home from a cruise off Africa to aid in attempting to solve the death of his younger brother, Smith Reynolds, husband of Libby Holman, former Broadway "torch singer."

BOYS SLAY KIN IN YULE ROWS

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Aftermath of two Christmas tragedies, two boys were in custody today, each having killed a relative. Authorities declared both killings were justified and indicated neither of the boys will be prosecuted.

Donald Vernon Romer, 17-year-old high school student, was held in connection with the killing of his father, Carl Christ Romer. The youth and other witnesses said he stabbed his father to death in a sudden spasm of fury when the elder Romer, intoxicated, was beating his wife.

The other boy killer, Herbert Polchow, 16, shot and killed his brother, Charles Polchow, Jr., 33. In this case, the lad, according to investigators, was defending his 61-year-old father. Witnesses said Charles Polchow came to his father's home, intoxicated and wielding a shotgun. He threatened to kill his parent, and father and son were grappling desperately for possession of the shotgun when the younger boy obtained a revolver and shot his brother to death.

HISTORY GROUP OPENS MEET

TORONTO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—An assertion that an entirely new outlook on history was imminent was before the American Historical Association as it opened its three-day session today. The Rev. Dr. Peter Guilday, Catholic University of America, Washington, and Secretary of the American Catholic Historical Association, said in an interview a changed outlook in history would come in line with advances made in other sciences. He said:

"We are studying a living history. We want to know why and how people lived and did things."

It will be the first time the association has met outside the United States. Historical subjects and the technique of history will be dealt with at sectional meetings at the University of Toronto.

TEACHERS OPEN STATE MEET

HARRISBURG, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—School teachers of the state met today to subject Pennsylvania's educational policies to their own pre-legislature study.

They are attending the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Education Association, representing 62,000 teachers, a session at which salaries, tenure, departmental costs, state aid units, teacher preparation and other problems will be considered in the light of current economy campaigns.

Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction, and the chairmen of three of the departmental committees making the "10-year plan" survey, will inaugurate the major discussions tonight.

JURY TO STUDY 'DEVIL SLAYING'

LINDEN, Tex., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A grand jury will consider the case of three men accused of the "devil slaying" of crippled, 3-year-old Bernice Clayton, while allegedly attempting to cure her.

One of the three is the child's father, Sherman Clayton, 30, who denied on the witness stand at yesterday's examining trial the testimony of Coy Oakley that the father held the child by the feet while Coy's father, Paul Oakley, choked her to death. The Oakleys, backwoods preachers, are the other two accused in the death of the girl who suffered from infantile paralysis.

Testimony brought out that praying, singing, shouting and other rites designed to "drive out the devil" believed responsible for the child's affliction, went on for days previous to her death December 19.

Paul, 20, the younger of the two brothers and a self-styled "divine healer," stood naked in his cell when officers went to take him to the courtroom. Clothing was provided.

'TECHNOCRACY' HELD TOPIC OF 'OFF SEASON'

Howard Scott, chief of the Technocrats, defines Technocracy as a method of scientific procedure in operating a mechanism of "continental magnitudes." This is taken to mean a system of operating the industries of the United States so that the people as a whole, rather than the few owners, will share more equally in the results of inventions and machine operation.

By NATHAN MILLER
Economics Professor, Carnegie Institute of Technology.

An enormous stir has been aroused over the unguarded assertions of a group of technicians at Columbia University as to the potentialities of our present-day economic machine The public has taken up their challenging statements until now the hue and cry resembles that associated with the popular manias which sweep through the land periodically.

In some respects, the craze over "Technocracy" resembles the state of mind reached by the Coue plague of some years ago or the present-day addiction to the intricacies of contract bridge. We Americans love to have some eternally new and popular topic for dinner and barber shop conversation, especially between the end of the football season and the first croppings-out of the baseball gossip. And it really makes little difference whether the topic is of the most trivial concern or of the most profound connotations. We all have our opinions, because has not Brisbane or Will Rogers or the president of the local bank or the high school principal set us to rights on the subject?

NEW TOPIC AWAITED

In other words, as soon as the next juicy murder case or Hollywood scandal bobs up or the teams reach their training camps, all the preoccupation with the future destiny of America will be consigned to the limbo of fads grown obsolete. And Mark Sullivan or James Truslow Adams will have another source of material for the recent history of American life.

After all, the work of the Technocrats had been proceeding, as far as we know, in a satisfactory, evolutionary process of gathering data and plotting graphically the results for the last 10 or 12 years. The cat should not have been let out of the bag prematurely, because publicity has only resulted in letting loose an offensive stream of over-assertion, exaggeration, misstatement, half-baked theorizing and worst of all, that inevitable plague of those who arise to protect "American institooshuns" and the Constitution from being supplied or calumniated. And then where are we, if not back in the bog again, except that we suspect more people than before of being tainted with a shade or two of "red?"

As a matter of fact, all the Technocrats have done is to restate in terms which are more up-to-date and which smack of being "scientific," the old problem of society—to wit, how to reconcile its productive powers with the greatest welfare of the greatest number of the people. At least, they have plotted in what appears to be an almost sensational form, the tremendous productive powers of America and allude at least by contrast to the miserable, degrading, if not catastrophic way in which we are mishandling the problem of the distribution and consumption of the goods which our society is now capable of turning out. They suspect that our price system has failed, and indeed it has, at least temporarily. But it is a mistake to believe that they are suggesting a way out—not at all—for what they have done is to repeat what the social critic has done since Plato—the accusation that our political and social system is basically awry and unjust.

SUGGESTS CLASSICS

I would suggest to those who are aflame over the subject that they turn to such classics in the field of social criticism as "The Republic" of Plato, the "Utopia" of Sir Thomas More, "Looking Backward" by Edward Bellamy, the economic discussions by Karl Marx and other Socialists and see whether they do not recognize there the same strain of thought which has been evoked by the Technocrat discussions.

It is hopeful in these times of widespread unemployment and economic bankruptcy, of mountainous debts and egregious charity to realize that people are not thinking of beer alone but of a way out of the impasse. If the Technocrat stir leads us to serious pondering over the great problem of economic and political reconstruction, all the more power to Howard Scott and his noble legion and their 3,000 charts! But there is a faint suspicion that as soon as Babe Ruth signs up and the golf courses are clear again and the unemployed can take their ease on the park benches, the commotion will be over and Technocracy will become another item in the already overcrowded card-catalogues of the public libraries (that is, if the budgets of the libraries are not cut too severely).

COXTOWN BEATS TECHNOCRATS

Father Cox is just a jump ahead of the scientists and engineers now promoting the new "technocracy" idea that is creating so much discussion throughout America. His "Coxtown currency" follows the same idea of "technocracy" currency. It must be spent—it cannot be saved or invested other than in actual commodities. Father Cox expects to have his "currency" available this week. He, however, is not in full accord with these scientists and engineers.

"Coxtown currency" is to be employed only by the residents of his community farm and is paid to them for actual services rendered in production and is exchangeable only for food and supplies at the commissary of Old St. Patrick's. Consequently "Coxtown" in reality will be the first community of the "technocrats," although their activities do not reach the full scope of the new idea outlined for this new Eutopia.

In the meantime Father Cox is getting a gratifying response to his request that friends and supporters send him the Sun-Telegraph subscription blank on this page as their New Years greeting. He gets a liberal cash commission for his unemployment relief fund from every blank that comes in from every one of the blanks clipped from this page, filled in and sent to him.

'No-Accident' Trolley Man Seeking Record

Veteran Recalls Old Days of Floods And Ferries

New Years Day carries a double significance to Martin M. Duffy, of 23 Fifth street, Sharpsburg, veteran employe of the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

It was on New Years Day, more than 40 years ago, that he made his first run as a motorman on what was then the Pleasant Valley Street Railways Company, one of the forerunners of the present Pittsburgh Railways Company.

Not only has he served nearly half a century as a motorman-conductor, but records reveal he never has been involved in an accident. Reminiscing, he says:

"Back in those days the cars were heated by coal stoves. Occasionally during the spring the regions along Allegheny River would become flooded. We hauled our passengers as near to the bridges as possible. Private individuals, operating skiffs, ferried them to the bridge."

Duffy says his New Years resolution will be to complete at least 10 more years with the Pittsburgh Railways Company and to keep his no-accident record clear.

Mountain Slides Follow Earthquake

DURANGO, Col., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Slides on Carbon Mountain diminished late yesterday after a big crevasse appeared near the top as the climax of 10 days of faulting action.

While rocks continued to catapult down the steep mountain sides into the Animas Valley, no avalanches were moving, steam jets ceased to flow and subterranean rumblings which have accompanied the movement could be heard only at intervals. Geologists expressed a belief the action is linked with the earthquake which shook the western United States last week.

MACK'S DEATH STIRS SORROW

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The death of Norman E. Mack, editor and prominent Democrat, was mourned today by many friends from President-elect to humble citizen.

Mr. Mack, former editor and publisher of the Buffalo Evening and Sunday Times, former national Democratic chairman and member of the Democratic National Committee for 32 years, died at 12:50 a. m. yesterday after a brief illness. He was 75.

Messages of sympathy from his friends in every walk of life poured into his home. President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt was one of the first to express sympathy. Mr. Mack started his newspaper career in Jamestown, where he edited and published the Chautauqua Lake Gazette in 1878. In 1879 he sold the Gazette and purchased the Buffalo Sunday Times. Later the Buffalo Evening Times was established.

He was one of Alfred E. Smith's staunchest supporters in the 1928 presidential race. Shortly before his retirement this year, however, he announced his support of Gov. Roosevelt at a time when members of the local Democratic organization were backing Smith for the presidential nomination.

BOROUGH KEEPS VOLPE FINE

In order that Wilmerding borough might collect fines from Joe Volpe and two others charged with liquor law violations, informations filed before J. T. Small, East McKeesport justice of the peace, were withdrawn, Police Chief S. M. Holden, of Wilmerding, said today. Volpe is a brother of the three Volpes who were slain in liquor warfare last summer.

Holden explained Volpe, Tony Tucker and Joseph Hyrsjk were fined $50 and costs each by Burgess R. W. Bishop Saturday following their arrest in raids. He said search warrants were obtained from Justice Small, but after the burgess had imposed the fines, the informations filed before the justice were withdrawn.

The police chief said if the cases had been prosecuted before the justice and the men held for court, the borough treasury would not have derived revenue from the proceeding. The burgess fined them for keeping a resort.

The principal address of the series is to be in Berlin, where he has been invited to address a group of scientists by Dr. Max Planck, internationally known physicist. He also will speak in Breslau, Gottingen, Hamburg, Heidelberg, Konigsberg and Munich. The trust under which the educator isto speak was founded by Gustav Oberlaender, philanthropist of Reading, and its purpose is to promote better understanding between Germany and America.

Wife, G. O. P. Leader, Slain; Husband Held

CLARKSDALE, Miss., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—R. B. Davis today was formally charged with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Celia Cook Davis, 28-year-old Mississippi Republican leader, who died Christmas Day of four bullet wounds in the body.

Officers said they learned the woman, a Federal Court deputy clerk and former United States commissioner in the Mississippi Delta, was shot following a bridge party in the Davis home several days ago.

2 Held in Attempt To Shoot Officer

OIL CITY, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Facing charges of assaulting a police lieutenant who sought to arrest them, Lee Jones and Albert Johnson, Negroes, are in jail.

Lieut. Joseph Damon says a pistol was placed against his side and the trigger pulled, but the weapon failed to discharge. He was then knocked unconscious, Damon alleges.

"MOIST THROAT" FOUND SECRET OF COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you catch cold.

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that cough from the inside out.

When you feel that warning dryness take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN. It's absolutely safe. Sold at all drug stores, 60¢.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello Ladies and Gentlemen:

The big holiday is over and do you notice how tough it is to get back to daily tasks? With New Years coming on, you might as well put everything off until next week.

* * *

J. A. R. says that it's a good thing New Years day follows Christmas in such short order. He can send a Happy New Year to those who sent him a Merry Christmas but whom he forgot to remember.

* * *

Inspector J. P. Clancy, Grant Building Globe-Trotter, tells of an excitedly confused man who rushed up to the postoffice window with a handful of greeting cards and hurriedly demanded 30 inch-and-a-half stamps. Must have been an architect.

* * *

Is it any wonder Mrs. H. Russell, of Bloomfield, was a trifle put out the day before Christmas? After being elated over winning a 10-pound turkey, someone removed it from the back porch. If a needy person did it, she hopes it was enjoyed, but if not—well, she won't cry if today he has a little indigestion.

* * *

The first robin is reported in Edgewood Acres, Forest Hills Borough by Mrs. M. Chapman. And now, can spring be far behind?

* * *

And R. F. Bachmer is quite sure tht all lost dogs must congregate in his neighborhood, Boggs avenue near Lelia street, Mt. Washington. Lost dog owners please note.

* * *

Add to wondering about technocracy, Dart playing, sometimes termed "dart baseball." Understand it's popular up the Allegheny Valley. The French Presbyterian Church team of Tarentum leads the league.

* * *

Another pastime just revealed to the Globe-Trotter by Ivan W. Saunders, of 232 Emerson street, is the collecting of locomotive pictures especially by railroaders. Ivan would like to hear from other collectors.

* * *

But the real thrill this Christmas was reading your delightful greetings. Thank you.

Listening In On Radio Gossip

Jane Froman, band-leading songster, started out to be a newspaper woman, but decided that singing would be more fun than writing—and so she sang her way to fame... While still a student at the Conservatory of Music in Cincinnati, she attended a party at the home of Powell Crosley, Jr., where she sang a bit and was offered a radio spot on WLW. Then came a tonsil operation, after which she was warned by the surgeon not to sing for at least a year, but the inner urge conquered and she found herself crooning, using very little effort and straining her throat not at all . . . Soon afterwards an audition with Paul Whiteman and network broadcasting.

Miss Froman

A tin suspender button once saved the life of Art Van Harvey, who plays "Vic" in the "Vic and Sade" sketches. When he was a youngster, he attended a picnic with a chum, who, holding a .22 rifle, accidentally pulled the trigger. Van felt something strike him in the side and later found a bullet lay in the fold of his blouse, near a much-dented suspender button.

* * *

About Howard Claney, Magic Carpet announcer, who was born in Pittsburgh and attended Carnegie Tech: He's a writer, painter and dramatic actor; can't play the piano well or sing; a football enthusiast; likes black coffee on arising; can't sleep on a pillow; spends odd moments in the studios sketching people or scenes around him on the backs of radio scripts; likes to spend his two-week vacation just lolling about a particular little Vermont village; enjoys discussing Shakespeare and his plays, earnestly maintaining all the while that he is no authority on the subject, although he's played in, directed or produced 12 different Shakespearean productions, and is looking forward to his first trip abroad, when he intends to visit Ireland.

* * *

For seven years Harry Reser has nursed a secret ambition to ring the sleigh bells and work the barking dog sound effect in the Eskimos' signature . . . and was all happy when he had a chance to gratify that ambition as a guest star on a Newark station recently. He jingled the bells and everything went very well until he leaned over to work the barker. He pulled the piece of chamois skin along the cord once—and then again, his efforts resulting in absolute, and disconcerting, silence. He'd forgotten the rosin, without which the contraption is useless . . . Undaunted, he still aspires to work the barker.

Seibel Discusses Theater Tonight

George Seibel, dramatic and literary critic of the Sun-Telegraph, gives a talk of interest to all playgoers, discussing news and personalities of the theater, during his weekly "Plays and Players" broadcast on WCAE at 7 o'clock.

WCAE offers 15 minutes of fun with Uncle Bob and Betty as they read the Sun-Telegraph comic pages tonight at 6.

News flashes by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, are broadcast over WCAE and WJAS daily at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

DAVIES PARTY SPREADS CHEER

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27.—(Universal.)—All day long happy little girls crooned to their dolls, and exuberant small boys raced up and down on scooters and roller skates.

And they were still talking about the wonderful Christmas party given on Saturday for the patients of the Marion Davies Foundation by Marion Davies, famous Cosmopolitan motion picture star.

Not for many months have these 2,500 children had such a glorious time as they had listening to the vaudeville program on the great Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer sound stage, and then receiving their gifts.

And the toys that were distributed were of the very best quality—no cheap, shoddy things that would wear out quickly. Dolls, skates, baseballs, gloves, kiddie kars, scooters, toy wheelbarrows and all the rest were chosen with just as much care and thought as the most loving parent could put into selecting toys for his or her own youngsters.

The show, given for the children and their parents, brought the Hollywood baby orchestra; Polly Moran, Jackie Cooper, Mitza Vernille, the Gordons and their boxing kangaroo, Bill Hogan and his orchestra, and Will and Gladys Ahern and Brother Den, all to give of their very best for an audience that clapped and cheered.

Studio workers—stage managers, electricians, prop men, and men and women from a dozen departments joined in making the affair a success. Police officers wore the broadest and happiest of grins, as they guided the crowd and kept roving youngsters from losing themselves in the mazes of the studio.

Dinner Guest Chokes On Goose Bone, Dies

READING, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Christmas dinner with friends proved fatal to Charles Hassler, 68, of Stonetown. While eating dinner at the home of Leroy Fegley, Hasslar choked on a goose bone and died within a few minutes.

FEAR LYNCHING IN RANGE FEUD

TUCUMCARI, N. M., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Fear of violence caused Sheriff Ira Allen to take Leland Bell, 27, a rancher, from the jail here to an unannounced destination late yesterday after he was arrested for the slaying of two homesteading brothers. A range feud was suspected.

Everett Fling, 25, was shot and killed near his homestead shack, 20 miles southeast of here. Charles, 22, who was wounded, died this afternoon.

Before Charles Fling died he told authorities a masked gunman ran out of the homestead shack as he and Louis Fling, another brother, were dismounting from their horses. He opened fire at the two brothers, who fled in different directions.

Louis Fling ran to the home of a neighbor and summoned aid. When a posse arrived at the homestead the gunman had disappeared. Everett Fling's body was found hidden in a granary.

Bell, who lives on a ranch near that of the Fling homestead, surrendered to the Sheriff.

O'Brien Inaugural As Mayor Delayed

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The inauguration of Mayor-elect John P. O'Brien has been postponed until January 3, it became known today, so that Tammany can turn out for the induction of Gov.-elect Herbert H. Lehman in Albany, January 2.

LATEST AND GREATEST

The Pontiac Economy Straight 8 engine is the latest development of the Straight 8 principle, with all the lessons learned by the world's largest manufacturer of Straight Eights brilliantly applied. Every development resulting from this experience has been carefully tested in the General Motors research laboratories; then proved in actual operation at the General Motors Proving Ground. In the new Pontiac, therefore, the inherent smoothness, speed and stable power of the Straight 8 have not only reached new peaks of performance, but are delivered at a degree of operating efficiency never before possible.

OPERATING ECONOMY

For you, a very practical result of this efficiency is Pontiac's operating economy. Just as the modern Six is more economical to operate than earlier Fours, the Pontiac Economy Straight 8 is so highly developed that it gives you all the smooth and brilliant performance of the Straight 8 at its best—yet costs no more to operate than you have been paying for much smaller cars.

You don't have to put up with ordinary car standards today. General Motors has put a BIG STRAIGHT 8 IN THE LOW PRICE FIELD! Drive this new Pontiac now. Compare it with every other low priced car. Use the simple chart above as your guide to Value. Then choose the car that gives you most for your money. URGES MONEY BASED UPON ELECTRICITY

International News Service.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 27.—Abandonment of the gold standard and adoption of electrical energy as a basis for currency was the somewhat startling proposition before the American Association for the Advancement of Science today.

It came from Dr. J. P. Norton, financial writer, of Suffield, Conn., in an address at the opening session of the society's convention last night.

Two great benefits to be derived from his theory, Norton said, were reduction of one-fourth of the national debt and absolute monetary stability.

'ELECTRIC DOLLAR'

Norton would utilize kilowatt hours as the money standard, and suggested an "electric dollar" or "Edison dollar" as the unit of currency.

Such a dollar, he explained, might be defined as 40 kilowatt hours, which he pointed out is the same in quality and quantity everywhere and for which cost of production does not greatly vary.

Electric companies, under the plan, would deposit with the treasury promises to deliver specified amounts of such hours and against these promises the government would issue "electric dollars." Norton claimed this arrangement similar to that now used in circulating bond-secured bank notes.

Subjects as different as the impact of machinery on civilization and the nature of the cosmis day are providing the chief controversies at the mid-winter meeting here of the association this week.

In the economic section, serious effort is being made for the first time to estimate the social and economic consequences of the rapid mechanization of this country in the past 30 years.

FISHER TO SPEAK

'Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale University, and Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will be among the speakers. Several papers will be read by other scientists on such subjects as "Mass Production and Social Change." Prof. Walter Rautenstrauch, of Columbia University, will present the first formal scientific explanation of the methods employed by the "Technocrats."

The cosmic ray debate on Friday will feature Dr. Robert A. Millikan and Dr. Arthur H. Compton, both Nobel prize winners, in complete opposition on the nature of the high-voltage radiation, which has been the subject recently of world-wide research and investigation. Also participating in the debate will be other eminent physicists.

About 1,800 papers on scientific subjects will be read during the five days the association is in session. In medicine, the life cycle of the tuberculosis germ will be traced; the relation of the pituitary gland to the body and other ductless glands will be discussed. And recent developments in the study of tooth decay will be announced.

Dr. Yen Appointed Envoy to Russia

NANKINK, China, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Dr. W. W. Yen, who left his post as Minister to the United States to head the Chinese delegation to the League of Nations during the past year, was appointed Ambassador to Russia today by the Nationalist government.

Dr. Yen's appointment to the Moscow post was predicted after he made the announcement at Geneva two weeks ago that diplomatic relations between Russia and China were to be resumed. He played an important part in the negotiations with Maxim Litvinoff, Russian Foreign Commissar.

INJURED YOUTH JAILED, DIES

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Kenneth Kirkland, 24, is dead of a broken back after spending a night in jail where officers did not know that he had been injured.

The youth died last night in the Westmoreland Hospital after being removed here from the jail at Blairsville.

Investigators say his car was wrecked Saturday as it ran down an embankment near Blairsville. A motorcyclist who rescued Kirkland placed him in his sidecar and started for the hospital at Indiana, Pa. He consulted a physician at Blacklick, who, police say, asserted the youth was intoxicated. The cyclist, police said, then retraced his route to Blairsville and turned Kirkland over to the jailer.

In the morning, another physician said the youth was suffering a broken back.

Scientist Shoots Self Accidentally

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—William Dykshorn, 24, of Ironton, Ia., a scientist of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, shot himself fatally yesterday inthe woods near the institution's laboratory at Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island.

Authorities pronounced the death accidental. He apparently had discharged one barrel of his shotgun by tripping over a stump. Associates said he frequently went to the woods to shoot crows.

Erie Guard Masses In Drill for Speed

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Erie National Guard units are dispersed again today after being called out suddenly last night to give their officers an opportunity to see how fast they could mobilize.

The mobilization precipitated a flood of wild rumors. Maj. Kenneth Momeyer said he called the mobilization for last night because of the holiday, "when it does not interfere with many men at work."

RECKONING DAY SET IN SOVIET

MOSCOW, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Soviet officials today designated January 1 as a day for reckoning the accomplishments of the first five-year plan, which ends December 31.

It was decreed the day will be known as "Shock Brigadiers' Day, to be devoted to checking the heroic achievements of the workers."

The check-up will be made to determine the readiness of the Soviet Republic to embark on a second five-year plan.

Details of the Soviet self-examination will probably be published before January 10. Soviet newspapers, meanwhile, are publishing eulogistic reviews of the "victory of world-wide historic significance."

HERE'S CIPHER HOLDING LOT OF MEANING

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor

Cipher No. 31 is an original, submitted by Frank E. Corbett. It should keep you guessing. You'll find it a simple little cipher with a lot of meaning. The words have been in your mouth for the last week. See what you can do with it.

Now for Cipher No. 30. You probably solved it with the aid of the tips. In Saturday's Sun-Telegraph you found the first transposition of the cipher. The second transposition is also under the key word, "Pittsburgh."

If you were successful you wrote the code letters horizontally from left to right in a rectangle, 10 letters wide and seven letters deep. Then you placed the columns under the first letter of the alphabet appearing in the key word, or "b," the second under the second letter in the alphabet appearing in the key word, or "g," and so on until you completed the rectangle.

The completed second step and the answer appear today.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Dec. 27.—Three armed bandits held up five customers and a clerk in the Peoples drug store in the heart of the business district at 8:30 a. m. today and escaped with $500.

Customers and the clerk were forced to lie on the floor while the bandits rifled the cash register. The bandits fled in an automobile after warning the victims not to make an outcry.

Two Prisoners Die In Police Station

Two prisoners died in police stations over the holiday season. Pat Haley, 50, without a home, died in a cell in South Side Police Station today, a short time after he had been arrested. The identification of a man who died in a cell in Central Station yesterday was still unknown to Morgue officials today. He had been arrested Christmas Eve at Seventh street and Penn avenue. Both were charged with drunkenness.

Line Leak Floods Streets With Gasoline

EL SEGUNDO, Cal., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Streets of the community of Lawndale near here ran copiously yesterday with something which modern conditions have placed on at least a parity with milk and honey—free gasoline.

A Standard Oil Company pipeline broke, gutters brimmed, a quarter-acre lake was formed, and citizens helped themselves without interference. One diligent worker was reported to have bailed up about 200 gallons before the break was repaired.

NEEDY TO GET SALE SHOES

The Salvation Army will repair and distribute to the needy all old shoes received by the Petty Shoe Company, Jenkins Arcade, during the company's present sale. The company makes an allowance of $2 on each sale of new shoes where a pair of old shoes is turned in, an annual custom.

The Salvation Army learning that the Petty Shoe Company had asked the Sun-Telegraph to distribute this year's supply of old shoes, made application, which was granted, that the footwear be turned over to them for repair in their industrial home and then distributed.

Love No Longer Enough, Writer-Wife Declares

LONDON, Dec. 27.—(Universal.)—Margery Lawrence, English writer noted for her happy domestic life, today has prodded English readers with another one of her controversial lines:

"Love is no longer enough for a woman."

Miss Lawrence says the old saw about woman's place being in the home is nothing but "rubbish." This is how she writes it:

"An existence devoted to love of one particular man can be shockingly stultifying to a woman's mental and spiritual growth, and often the greater the love, the greater the stultification.

"The woman of today has the same deep physical feelings, the same love of children and husband as her ancestors. But her intelligence is blossoming.

"A wise man realizes this, and within reason lets his wife have her head. A foolish man rebels against it, quotes 'A woman's place is in the home,' and such ancient, out-of-date saws.

"Love will be the mainspring of a normal woman's life as long as this old world turns round, but love cannot, these days, be all the works as well as the mainspring."

KEEPS YULE FIR YEAR, SON DIES

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—John Rogers decided a year ago that the Christmas tree he put up for his small son should do for 1932.

He put it in water, ran a wick from the liquid to a hole bored in the trunk, and revived the balsam fir so that it looked as green as it did a year ago.

On Christmas he set it up in its accustomed place, but his son was not there.

He died two months ago.

Jackrabbit Ranges Downtown Streets

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—A street car conductor and motorman and half a dozen passengers gasped in amazement as a jackrabbit zig-zagged a frightened course around the car on a downtown business street and then sought refuge in a grocery. All agreed somebody's live Christmas gift must have got lost.

YACHT SLAYING CLUE FOUND.

BOSTON, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—A possible new clue to the slayers of Benjamin Collings, victim of "pirates" aboard his yacht in Long Island Sound September 9, 1931, was revealed today as Mrs. Lillian Collings, the slain man's widow, spent the Christmas holidays with her parents in Dorchester.

Mrs. Collings, an eye witness to the slaying, hoped that the latest developments in a long and ceaseless investigation of the crime, might bring to justice the "phantom killers."

As to the exact clue, Mrs. Collings referred all questioners to her lawyer, Attorney William Kelley, of Stamford, Conn., in charge of the investigation.

Over the telephone, Kelley was reported to have said:

"I have a clue which looks like a good lead. As soon as I get a complete report from private detectives, I will turn the matter over to authorities."

McKeesport Boy And $50 Bill Vanish

McKeesport police today were searching for a 15-year-old boy who disappeared after being given a $50 bill to get changed. Wife Bails Mate And Girl Held On Her Charge

MILLVILLE, N. J., Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Whatever else he may think, Frank Egbert can't accuse his wife of holding a grudge—long. Christmas night she had him and Miss Yvonne Davis arrested because they were "too friendly." In default of $500 bail each, they were locked up.

When Mrs. Egbert appeared yesterday at the police station, Mayor Jones asked:

"What's happened this time?"

She replied:

"I've been thinking. Here's bail for both of them."

State Marriages Hit New Low Record

HARRISBURG, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The Bureau of Vital Statistics announces that fewer persons were married in Pennsylvania last year than ever before.

Only 176 out of every 10,000 persons more than 15 years old was married in 1931. Compared with the entire population, the total of 60,160 marriages gives a rate of 124 married out of every 10,000 residents.

Eighty-seven per cent of the brides trod the middle aisle for the first time. They included 10 who were from 65 to 74 years old.

It was the second time for 7,362 men and 8,151 women, and the third venture for 216 men and 256 women. Sixteen women and five men took a fourth chance.

CLUBMAN SLAIN IN MYSTERY

DETROIT, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—In the intricate mechanism of the automatic pistol which killed Arthur Morley Kugeman, wealthy young clubman, police hoped today to find the key to the mystery of his death.

Kugeman's body was found in a small dressing room in his costly suburban home last week. Beside him lay the pistol. One bullet had pierced his brain, a second had gone through his shoulder, and a third through the sleeve of his coat.

But only one bullet and one empty shell could be found.

Declaring himself dissatisfied with the suicide theory, Coroner Albert L. French today turned the gun over to police ballistics experts.

'Merrily 'Face the Music' With Mary Boland Made Nixon Ring

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Whoever did not believe in Santa Claus, came away a convert from the Nixon Theater last night, where not only the audience was presented with all the ingredients of a Merry Christmas, but the efficient and deserving limbs of the law had their tin cash-boxes filled, the tin box being the cop's substitute for a stocking. W. S. Gilbert once told us that "A policeman's lot is not a happy one," but Moss Hart proves Gilbert was wrong. "Face the Music" shows what trouble can come to a policeman just because he has been too deserving.

Mr. Seibel

This musical comedy is as joyous and tuneful as was "The Cat and the Fiddle," with this difference—that romantic operetta was laid in foreign parts and artistic circles, while "Face the Music" is strictly American, and we can all grasp it. Indeed, no other country could understand it—no other nation would believe it! With the revelations of the past two years, it seems a trifle underdone.

But "underdone" must be understood to apply only to the facts on which the story is based. Production, lyrics, music, comedy, and all that are just exactly right—gorgeous, witty, pretty, full of happy invention with 1001 laughs.

SATIRE ON POLITICS

What "Of Thee I Sing" is to national politics, "Face the Music" is in municipal affairs. It is typically American, not only in subject matter, but also in its good-nature. The Russians would take these grafters and shoot them at sunrise, but Moss Hart and Irving Berlin get fun and frolic and tinkling tunes out of them. They laugh at the depression; they extract comfort from the Eighteenth Amendment; and finally they turn a police investigation into a circus sideshow.

It's a truly gorgeous show, but what would it be without Mary Boland? She is the wife of the millionaire cop Meshbesher, who has to get rid of the contents of his tin cash-box, and backs a musical revue in order to lose it. And this Mary Boland is funnier than she was in "Cradle-Snatchers," funnier than in "The Vinegar Tree"—in fact, she is the funniest thing in this funniest show. There isn't anybody else could put on the same agony and supersimplicity.

Too bad the King of Siam requisitioned that elephant on which she made her triumphant entry in the New York production—but the palanquin of the Shah of Persia serves the purpose of the final curtain just as well—almost.

SOMEWHAT SOPHISTICATED

Perhaps some parts are too sophisticated for this side of Broadway. We have all heard of Mae West, who walked out because the revised show was too dirty; but Judge Crater seems to be a stranger here, and even Seabury was a surprise to some. Which shows how up-to-date musical comedy must be if it is not to wilt and perish.

But this one is really superb—and runs so smoothly—that the audience was kept alternately gasping and roaring. Moss Hart had a capital idea and Irving Berlin a trunkful of good tunes, and between them they have extracted sunshine from cucumbers. The opening scene in the Automat, where the bankrupt 400 get a pickle for a nickel, would make even a stockbroker laugh. The murderer who killed his wife, and doesn't break down until he sees his pet stock smashed, gets even the sympathy of the policemen.

CAST IS VERY FINE

Besides Mary Boland, there is a very fine cast throughout. Margaret Lee and Jack Good are a pair of eccentric dancers with whirling steps and mad jerks. Ann Greenway is a prima donna with sweet voice and sparkling personality. Charles Lawrence is blandly humorous as the ineffable Meshbesher. John Barker sings well as the hero, and Robert Emmett Keane puts comic vim into the part of the producer. Oscar Polk acts a footman in true southern style with Dixie accent. And John Ehrle deserves well for leading the Drinking Song with might and main.

There are many scenic surprises, like the revolving penthouse which turns into a Spanish ballet; like the mirror dance and the "Manhattan Madness" number; like the humorously daring Crinoline Dance without crinolines. In short, this is a show of surprises, the biggest surprise of all being that there is no sawdust stuffing in the entire two acts. It is good from first to last, with a musical score that reveals Irving Berlin at his best and a story that makes pungent satire out of municipal corruption, political graft and the depression. It that is not getting sunshine out of cucumbers, what is it?

Mlle. Colbert Keeps Job

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.—Well, it's a woman's privilege. Claudette Colbert has decided to sign again with Paramount after all.

For a few days there, it looked as if the French star were going through with her threat to break away, but Paramount officials finally have persuaded her otherwise. Withdrawal of a request that she take a salary cut is believed to have been an important consideration.

The little dispute proved one thing to everybody's satisfaction. Leaving Paramount wouldn't mean idleness for Claudette. Half a dozen studios wanted her. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer proffered a long-term contract. Universal said money was no object if she would sign for one picture.

None of this, of course, was lost on Paramount. Proof is they came into line.

* * *

With the finish of Janet Gaynor's picture, friends say she will slip away from Hollywood for a while . . . Johnny Farrow has been taking Constance Cummings to the Club New Yorker . . . Lupe Velez was dancing there the same evening with Johnny Weissmuller. The little paprika still denies anything serious between her and movieland's favorite swimmer.

"Johnny is just one of my many friends," she says. "It ees no question of my taking him back. When I sent him away he was a married man and I wouldn't walk to the corner with a married man. Now, he is free. So why I should not see heem?"

* * *

A group of Argentine showmen have offered Fifi D'Orsay a personal appearance tour in South America. I think she'll stay here though. Incidentally, Fifi is to impersonate Anna Held in the next Domino Club broadcast . . . Some of the flu sufferers are returning to the lots. John Gilbert is one, Jack Conway another.

Music Hall To Open

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The music hall, first entertainment unit of the quarter-billion-dollar Rockefeller Center — the structural miracle that blossomed in an economic drought—will blaze open tonight on three bustling sides—Forty-ninth and Fiftieth streets and Sixth avenue.

Like most new things in the world of the theater, it will be the largest entertainment center of its kind in the world. Modern to the minute, it will accommodate 6,200 persons on the main floor and in its three "mezzanines," as S. L. (Roxy) Rothafel, director of entertainment, prefers to call them.

TRAFFIC PRECAUTIONS

Two hundred fifty police officers, foot and mounted, have been detailed for tonight's opening, and special traffic lanes will be kept open as far north as Central Park, nine blocks north.

Further to handle the opening night attendance there will be 200 doormen, ushers and pages. The nature of the uniforms of these employes has been kept a secret, but it is understood they will be a departure toward simplicity from the elaborate uniforms which have dressed the ushers and pages in other amusement places under the Roxy rule.

When the theater opens tonight, there will be on duty in the entire building, backstage and in the front of the house, 748 persons—one employe for every nine persons in the audience.

COSTUMING HUGE TACK

The figures involved in the new theater are as great as the enterprise itself. Two thousand costumes are required for the performance, with approximately 5,000 fittings needed, according to an announcement from the music hall. Twenty thousand yards of material were used.

The entertainment itself is variety, similar in its diversity to a vaudeville bill, not elaborated and restyled to include spectacle and ballet numbers of the type seen in moving picture "palaces."

An orchestra of 100 pieces, directed by Erno Rapee, will have to play 56 musical compositions during the program, and arrangers and coypists were called upon to provide nearly 5,000 parts for the use of the orchestra alone.

Another Rockefeller Center theater, the R-K-O Roxy, dedicated to photoplay and stage entertainment, will have its opening Thursday night.

Mitzi Green In Davis

By MANUEL M. GREENWALD

It's a swell show for the kids this week in the Davis and Regent, where the holidays are treating the youngsters to "Little Orphan Annie" and "Men of America."

Mitzi Green imitates the Marx Brothers while she isn't living up to Little Orphan Annie. Along with Mitzi is the most loveable tot the screen has yet seen, Buster Phelps. With the grand old May Robson doing Grandma Stewart this "Little Orphan Annie" is something the kiddies will go for hook, line and sinker.

There is plenty of hard riding and shooting out in the modern West, where Bill Boyd and Dorothy Wilson enact a bit of a romance in "Men of America," with Chic Sale looking on and reminiscing about Indians and pioneers and things like that.

Here Again

Alice Ann Baker has returned to the ranks of the George Sharp Players, whose next week's bill in the Pitt will be "The First Mrs. Fraser."

Island Paradise Picture Here Another Week

The South Sea Island film showing the beautiful paradise of Bali is held for another week at the Avenue Cinema. Rarely has there been so much tropical glory caught by the camera, to say nothing of the curious religious customs and the beautiful Balinese ladies. The lecture explaining the film is in English—and the audiences eat it alive.

Coming Screen Programs

June Clyde portrays a modern maiden whose life is one gay round of petting, jazz and lightly loved "boy friends" in "The Thrill of Youth," New Years week bill in the Fulton, which will open Thursday, with Allen Vincent and Matty Kemp in the cast.

* * *

"Trouble in Paradise," with Miriam Hopkins featured, begins a three-day screen engagement in the Enright tomorrow. Herbert Marshall and Kay Francis also are in the cast.

* * *

Ed Wynn in "Follow the Leader," screen version of "Manhattan Mary," musical comedy, in which he appeared on the stage, comes to the Sheridan Square screen tomorrow to remain through Friday.

* * *

"Strange Interlude," screen version of the nine-act drama by Eugene O'Neill, will be presented in the Penn as the New Years week program. Norma Shearer and Clark Gable will be seen in the leading roles. It will open Friday for the first time here, except as a "road show."

* * *

Barbara Stanwyck will head the New Years screen program in the Stanley, where she will be seen on the screen in "The Bitter Tea of Gen. Yen," with Nils Asther in the title role and Walter Connolly prominent. Friday will be the opening day.

* * *

William Powell and Jean Blondell are the featured players in "Lawyer Man," which will head the screen program in the Warner for Friday and New Years week showing.

* * *

The New Years week program on the screens of the Davis and Regent will begin Saturday. One of the two features will be Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts in "They Just Had to Get Married," a comedy.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Next week the Nixon will present two popular operettas, each for three evening shows and one matinee performance. First will be "The Student Prince," which will open Monday, January 2. Allen Jones, Gertrude Lang and George Hassell, the latter in his familiar role of Lutz, will head the cast. There will be a Wednesday matinee. "Blossom Time" will be presented the last half of the week.

* * *

Margaret Anglin will be the guest star of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week, appearing in the leading role in "The First Mrs. Fraser," a part created by Grace George.

'Twin Beds,' Farce in Pitt, Amuses Two Christmas Holiday Audiences

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Two holiday performances of "Twin Beds" by the George Sharp players in the Pitt yesterday afternoon and evening gave the audiences in attendance plenty to laugh at in the funny situations of this Avery Hopwood farce. The late Mr. Hopwood was noted, above everything else, for bringing that usually hidden article of furniture, the bed, to the view of theater patrons.

It was a successful move on the part of Mr. Hopwood, and the profits were large. So he decided that if one bed was such a laughing matter two ought to double the number of guffaws, and he figured correctly, for "Twin Beds," now several years old, proved to be one of the most successful the numerous farcical works of the late American playwright, to whom nothing evidently was more comical than a bedroom.

THEY GET IN WRONG

Of course, to be a joke a bedroom has to have people in it who have no business being there, and nobody ever was more plausible in bringing about such situations than Mr. Hopwood. So it is in the case of "Twin Beds." One such person is a slightly—well, a good deal more than slightly—oiled gentleman who wanders into the wrong apartment. Another is another gentleman dweller in the same apartment building who has been chasing the other gent under the impression that he is burglar. To tell how our playwright traps both in a woman's bedroom and keeps them there until their wives also are assembled to witness their discovery would be to disclose something that should be kept secret if you wish to enjoy the play to the fullest, so we forbear.

The situation develops from the fact that three families who have moved from one building to escape one another, each thinking the others have remained, find themselves neighbors once again. And it all makes for uproarious fun.

MISS BAKER IS BACK

The farce marks the return of Alice Ann Baker, as well as the appearance of another new face among the George Sharp Players, Elizabeth Johnstone. These additions, with other changes recently, leaves Alden Chase as the only remaining member of the company originally assembled in Pitt aside from Grayce Thorson, who has not appeared regularly, but has a part in "Twin Beds," too. Miss Baker appears as a maid, in which she reveals her skill for artistic characterization, for this maid has more to do than merely say "yes, miss."

Alden Chase and Jean May play the leads, Mr. Chase as a man who wants to get to a place where there is more quiet, and finds himself in a veritable madhouse, where clothing disappears mysteriously and so rapidly that he hasn't a single suit left, and has to go around wrapped in a quilt. Miss May is his cute little wife who could have saved herself and husband a lot of trouble by not smiling at gentlemen in elevators.

Miss Johnstone made a good impression as a hard-boiled type of dame, married to a singer whose weaknesses are a liking for the ladies and for wine. Hunter Gardner played the singer suavely when sober and amusingly when mulled. Hugh Banks and Miss Thorson had little to do but did it O. K.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ABOARD THE S. S. MUSTAPHA II, MARSEILLES-BOUND.—I crossed the ocean this time on the S. S. Rex, which is registered at some 50,000 tons. I went from Italy to North Africa on the S. S. City of Tunis, displacing about 6,000 tons. I am now on my way to France in rough seas on the S. S. Mustapha II, slightly more than 2,000 tons. If this keeps up, by the time I get ready to sail from Japan to San Francisco, I'll be crossing the Pacific in a rowboat.

I have been, my dear friends, on boats and boats and boats. I have been rocked and pitched and tossed by European liners, Bermudian sailboats, Pacific ocean cruisers and Weehawken ferries. But if this isn't the doggondest craft on which I ever traveled, then Sam Goldwyn is an Irishman.

I didn't have to take this boat. I could have remained in Tunis five more days and taken the sister-ship, which is supposed to be newer. But when I learned that this boat was about 30 years old and the sister ship only two years less, I didn't see that it could make very much difference. So here I am—but why, I don't know.

When I approached the porter in my hotel last night and told him I was leaving this morning, he tossed me a strange glance.

"But if you do that," he muttered, "you will have to sail on the Mustapha II. Why not wait and take the sister-ship?"

"Because I don't want to wait," was my very complete reply. "And besides, what's the matter with the Mustapha? It's a boat, isn't it?"

"Yes," he returned, "it's a boat. But you will be traveling on it for two days. Would you like us to make up several cold meals for you here so that you can take them along with you?"

That this didn't make me take the other boat shows very definitely that the years, instead of making me smarter, are making me dumber. If, indeed, such a thing is possible . . .

Mr. Ray Cozine, my genial picture director, and Senor Romognoli, my Italian cameraman, are also aboard the Mustapha with me. Mr Romognoli has his own cabin—but Mr. Cozine and I decided to room together because that was the only way we could share the "cabin de luxe."

When I purchased my tickets, the steamship man urged me to take this mysterious "cabin de-luxe." There was but one of these glorious cabins aboard, he said, and we would ride in sumptuous comfort all the way from Tunis to Marseilles. The way he described the room, I saw it as a cross between the banquet hall of the Hotel Astor and Winnie Sheehan's living room in Beverly Hills.

But lo and behold! When we hit the boat in the morning, we were guided to a tiny spot that was no larger than two good-sized trunks. Mr. Cozine looked a trifle worried, but I smiled very complacently.

"They're showing us our baggage room first," I assured him. Then I turned to the porter. "Where is our bedroom?" I asked him.

He had no idea of what I was talking about, and it took me at least 20 minutes to find anyone around who could speak English. Meanwhile, animals of every shape and variety were being dumped on the deck only a short distance from our porthole. Cows, steers, horses, pigs, chickens—all these went by in a continual parade of strange smells.

Eventually, the gentleman who spoke English appeared before me. He proved to be a waiter.

"Look here, buddy," I said, "I bought the cabin de luxe on this boat and all they've shown me thus far is this baggage room. Where's the rest of our suite?"

"This his hit, sir," he returned in a strongly Cockney dialect that I cannot possibly imitate. "That's hall there his to hit, sir. You're hin hit now."

Whereupon Mr. Cozine spoke up. And his voice was very plaintive, indeed.

"If this is all there is," he ventured, "then—then there is no bathtub?"

I had a hunch he was going to ask that question. In all my experience I have never encountered such a bathing fiend as Mr. Cozine. The man is actually a bathtub maniac. Three, four, five baths a day are nothing at all to him. Whenever I am out and I want Mr. Cozine on the telephone, I never call his room. I phone the valet and tell him to get Mr. Cozine out of the bathtub.

The waiter, of course, didn't know Mr. Cozine as well as I did. And he began to laugh heartily.

"Ho, ho," he howled. "H'ive halways bean told you Hamericans hare very funny, hand now Hi know hit. Ho, ho. A bathtub hon the Mustapha! Ho, ho!"

He backed out, still laughing. I looked over at Mr. Cozine. On his face was the saddest expression I had ever seen in all my life . . .

The Mustapha sailed. And we hadn't been out of Tunis more than 10 minutes when Mr. Cozine made a discovery. He pointed to the ceiling of the cabin, and he wagged his head wisely.

"You see that, Mark?" he asked. "That rust? And that rust over there? This ship has been down to the bottom of the sea at some time during its career. You mark my words."

"Stop kidding a kidder," I stated. "I've been around too long for that sort of stuff. Come on out with me and let's see what the deck looks like—if we can get through the cows and the chickens."

So out we went to the deck, but I'm telling you right here and now that my pal's words were on my mind. Very possibly, he was quite right. The Mustapha had been used as a troop transport during the war. It might have gone down, at that. It—

I stopped thinking anything differ . t the moment we hit the alleged deck. For half the sailors on the boat were all busily engaged in one occupation. They were taking all the boat's life preservers out of the cases and stretching them along the deck!

As if that weren't enough, there wasn't one preserver in the bunch that was strong enough to keep itself up, much less a human being. I picked up one of them, felt it, punched at it with my right hand—and my hand went completely through it!

I looked at Mr. Cozine. Mr. Cozine looked at me.

"Don't say it," I muttered. "I know."

At that moment my Cockney friend passed by. I stopped him.

"Listen, buddy," I said. "I don't want you to think I'm nervous at all. But my friend here is a trifle worried. Do you mind if I ask you a little question?"

He didn't mind at all, he said.

"Well," I asked, "has this boat been down to the bottom once?"

He shook his head. I smiled happily and turned to Mr. Cozine.

"There you are, my boy," I cried. "I told you—"

The interruption came from the waiter.

"No, sir," he asserted. "It 'asn't been down once, sir. It 'as been down twice!"

Well, I wanted to go around the world . . .

FIVE KILLED, 5 HURT BY AUTOMOBILES IN HOLIDAY TRAFFIC

EAST END, HILL GAS STATIONS HELD UP

2 Collectors Robbed, Homes Looted in Series of Crimes

Two bandits were being sought by police today after they had held up a Standard Oil Company service station at Penn and Braddock avenues and the Meyer Segal service station at Kirkpatrick street and Bedford avenue, escaping with approximately $30.

Harry Barrish, attendant at the Hill station, said only one of the bandits was armed. While the armed man threatened him the other emptied the cash register of its contents—$6.

A short time later the same pair, police believe, entered the Standard station in East End and escaped with $25 after forcing Bernard G. Loger, 23, of 209 Morewood avenue, the attendant, behind a counter.

EMPLOYE ACCUSED

Steve Baronetski, 19, of 1218 Muriel street, was to be arraigned in Central Police Station today on a larceny charge in connection with the theft of $155 from Meyer Tessler, 1221 Carson street. Tessler, police say, gave Baronetski a job in his store following his release from a reformatory.

The Liberty Gasoline Service Station at Electric avenue and Oak street, North Braddock, was held up by two armed bandits last night, who escaped with $6 from the cash drawer, according to a police report.

The nearby home of Abraham Goldbloom, 5535 Darlington road, was ransacked also, but the amount of the loot was not determined.

HOMES ROBBED

Valuables estimated at $65 were stolen from the residence of William Meyer, 240 Gross street, by thieves who entered through a cellar window, according to a police report.

More than $1,000 was reported stolen when two armed thieves, one of whom was reported wearing a false mustache, held up two collectors in the Amoco gasoline station at Second avenue and Ross street, yesterday morning. The collectors, C. O. Hunter and C. Tamlin, said they were forced to turn over the money they had collected at 21 company stations.

Food, clothing, jewelry and other valuables were reported stolen in several other robberies, according to police reports.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Dec. 27.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Best story in the paper today, and there was many of fine charitable acts on Christmas, but away out on the Escalante Desert between Los Angeles and Salt Lake—I have flown over it many times, it's one of the most desolate places you ever saw, one lonely ranch—the father had died and left the mother with a whole house full of children. Well, the pilots on the Western Air run took up a purse of 80 dollars and got the children clothes and toys, and they flew low on Christmas Day and dropped 'em. What a godsend the plane and the radio is to out-of-the-way places.

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

Man Who Offered Self For Experiments Home

KENNETH W. SIARD, 30 . . . HE'S RECEIVED 30,000 LETTERS!

Almost Well After Months in Michigan Health Resort

Kenneth W. Siard, 30, the Latrobe, Pa., man who has submitted to 13 operations, drank 910 bottles of radium-treated water and baffled the diagnoses of more than 200 doctors throughout the country, is home for the holidays. He has recently offered himself to the medical profession for experiments in radium "cures."

Siard, in a few days will return to a Michigan health resort where in the past two months he had undergone a health and bath treatment. His health has steadily improved and he has gained 11 pounds.

Siard, a brother-in-law of A. F. Downing, president of the Latrobe National Bank, suffered an illness about seven years ago. Doctors said he was suffering from rheumatic fever. Leading specialists had given him up as a "hopeless" case. On a doctor's advice he took to drinking the radium water.

Siard used 910 bottles in less than two years. He discontinued using the water before the makers were ordered by the Federal Trade Commission to cease its representations of the value of the product, December 19, 1931. Later the company discontinued business. About a year ago the death of Eben M. Byers, Pittsburgh millionaire, was attributed to radium-treated water. Mr. Byers died in New York.

It was then Siard offered himself to science. To date he has received more than 30,000 letters from sufferers and persons interested in his strange case. Hundreds of offers have been made by institutions and individuals who wished to aid him with their treatments. Siard, who lives with his brother-in-law, yesterday said:

"I have now brought myself back to almost normal physical health with the exception of rigid knees necessitating the use of crutches. I can now enjoy most everything in every day life. I am able to travel alone by any means of transportation. I still feel that if science has anything new to offer, I am willing to try it. I feel that when a man has something to give, he is not deprived of happiness, and all I have to give is myself in hope of aiding other sufferers."

Halley said he was a sophomore at Pitt and hoped to make rapid advancement in chemistry to enable him to start his medical college course shortly.

Raisers Join in Plan To Serve Market With Meat

Pittsburghers are going to have 50,000 rabbits in 1933 to appease their appetites.

A co-operative association of 125 rabbits breeders, called the Domestic Rabbit Meat Distributors was ready to begin operation today.

The members will raise the large New Zealand type white rabbit at their homes, while the packing will be done on a co-operative basis. The packing house will be located on the Lincoln Highway, at the Allegheny-Westmoreland County line.

When the bunnies are ready for market they will be labeled the Vineyard Brand. They will be sold to restaurants, hotels, retail stores and private homes. Harry W. Haus, of 769 Princeton boulevard, is secretary and manager of the association.

He explained the centralized marketing plan is to care for those who bought breeders with the understanding the sellers would take the output. This failed to materialize, he said, because separate packing and selling proved expensive and impractical.

He said:

"Packing and selling meat is expensive and by doing it in one plant we can cut down the overhead."

The members have a total of 2,000 breeders, and he emphasizes there will be 50,000 rabbits for market next year.

Held in Wife's Death, Tries Suicide in Cell

A few hours after his arrest in connection with the fatal shooting of his wife, Bishop Henderson, Negro, attempted to end his life in a cell in Central Police Station, police said. Henderson butted his head against the cell walls and was taken to Allegheny General Hospital for treatment.

His wife, Mary, was shot to death when she sought to intercede in an argument between Henderson and Bay Simpson in their home yesterday in 1827 Watson street. The argument was said to have been over a piece of turkey Henderson intended serving Simpson. Henderson is accused by police of having done the shooting.

Many Strong-arm Lawmakers Want To Swing Gavel

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

During the peaceful Christmas armistice they tore off a land rush for the House speakership.

Rainey, of Illinois, claims it by a personal statement and insists 160 Democrats are with him to the bitter limits.

He says he has the North, the South and the West with him. Which leaves the other speakers only a thin wedge of political pie in the East.

However, that doesn't stop 11 other bright Congressmen from thumbing the plum. They're after the job, too.

It's the first fight within the Democratic party since their glorious victory in November. It proves that Satan finds mischief for idle hands to do.

The Speaker is the only armed Congressman within the city limits. He carries a big gavel which comes in handy in case of a tie.

That's why the boys want the job. During a congressional caucus a gavel is equivalent to a two-thirds plurality.

MACHINIST MAKES MINIATURE LOCOMOTIVE

Irwin Man Builds Engine In Own Workshop

A miniature locomotive, complete in every detail with air brakes, steam whistle, bell, throttle, oiling system, sand, and actually run under steam generated in its own boiler with coal about the size of a pea being used for fuel, has been constructed by an Irwin railroad man after more than three years' work. It is the second model engine built by Fred G. Carter, Main street, Irwin, a Pennsylvania Railroad machinist at the Pitcairn shops.

Mr. Carter

The engine, patterned after the Pennsylvania-Pacific K4S, is one-sixteenth the actual size, built on a scale of three-fourths of an inch to a foot. It is 38 inches long and 11½ inches high.

Practically everything about the engine was made by Carter in his workshop. Castings for the wheels and cylinders were purchased, but machined by him. The only complete unit purchased was the steam gauge.

The boiler is made from copper, brazed, riveted and silver soldered. It has been tested to 165 pounds steam pressure. The engine has run 100 hours blocked up. It is estimated by railroad officials the engine can haul a load of 5,000 pounds on the level. Most parts were made of solid metal, and some from pieces of scrap from real locomotives.

In the construction of the engine, Carter had no plans from which to work but made measurements of full sized engines. He was required to make many of his own tools.

Carter completed his first model locomotive and tender in two and a half years. It was considerably smaller, and then was the smallest working model of a steam locomotive in the world.

Carter's latest locomotive, weighing approximately 150 pounds, is now on display in the show window of Julius V. Rosendahl's jewelry store, 217 Main street, Irwin.

Firemen Chop River Ice To Succor Destitute

HARRISBURG, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—Harrisburg today recalled the drama of the frontier era as three men broke into front-page print with their daring undertaking to aid a family in distress.

The trio, volunteer firemen of suburban West Fairview, chopped a path for their rowboat through the ice-locked Susquehanna River to bring food to a family stricken ill at their home on an island in the stream.

John Schraedly, Samuel Keys and Thomas Keys found a father, mother and four children between the ages of 6 and 12 years, all ill and without food. A grocery order had been mailed to them by the Harrisburg Welfare Federation, but members of the family, confined not only by illness but virtually ice-bound, were unable to claim it at the West Fairview postoffice.

The firemen saw to it that the stricken family was provided for in every detail.

Forgetful Patients Aid Hospitals Here

Anything from false teeth to negligees are left in Pittsburgh hospitals. When patients enter they usually leave valuables in a sealed envelope at the desk. However, it is found many of these envelopes are never called for.

At the West Penn recently it was found there were hundreds of envelopes unclaimed for 20 years. The board of directors decided envelopes older than six years should be opened and disposed of. The inventory of several pages listed items as jewelry, chewing gum, false teeth, rubber bands, letters and bills. The gold was sold and the money was used for free treatments.

At the Passavant hospital there are well over 100 such articles left each year. They are kept for six months and then disposed of. The Passavant list consists of watches, negligees, toys, books, umbrellas, hats and eyeglasses.

Other hospitals in the city have comparatively few unclaimed articles each year, attaches said and they are disposed of after periods of varying length, some as brief as a few days.

HOOVER SEEKS BIG FISH

WITH PRESIDENT HOOVER'S PARTY, OFF FLORIDA COAST, Dec. 27.—(INS.)—President Hoover today was making another quick dash down the Florida coast in pursuit of deep-sea fish which so far on his holiday cruise have eluded him.

The President's yacht, Sequoia, anchored during the night off the mouth of the Nassau River, some 20 miles north of Jacksonville.

The party may go as far south as Miami. Cool weather and two futile fishing efforts irked the Chief Executive and he was ready to try for sail fish, barracuda and other big game fish toward the southern end of the peninsula, where he was told they were biting.

He fished late yesterday in the vicinity of Fernandina, Fla. On a sudden whim, he ordered the small boats over the side while the fishing fleet was refueling and sped up St. Mary's Sound, where he cast his line in vain.

ODD YULE GIFT FOR ROOSEVELT

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 27.—(Universal.)—President-elect Roosevelt found an odd gift among the hundreds of presents awaiting him at the executive mansion.

It was the tail of a horse, Gloster, a famous trotter, owned by his father, James Roosevelt, which set the world's record for a mile at 2:17¼ in 1873.

The Governor's father later sold the trotter to Senator Leland B. Stanford, who shipped him to his California farm. Gloster was killed in a train wreck the next year before he could do any more racing.

Gloster was jet black and the tail hairs are more than four feet long. Roosevelt intends to have them placed in a glass case underneath a lithograph of the famous trotter. The gift came to him from a friend in Goshen, N. Y., where Gloster did most of his racing.

The children lived with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Blake in the tenant house on a farm near North Wales. Christmas morning, Paul Broz, a contractor and owner of the Blakes' house, called on them but found 7-year-old Anna Mae trying to mother Pauline, 6; Dorothy, 3, and 14-month-old Martin. All four were huddled in a cold, upstairs bedroom.

Both mother and father were absent. The house was almost bare of food.

Police said they were told Mrs. Blake left the house on Friday, taking a 2-months-old baby with her. The father, the children said, left Christmas eve, telling them he was going to buy them dolls and never returned.

A small group of Chinese and foreigners were invited to the tea at the Sun Fo western style home in the outskirts of Shanghai.

SHOWS BRING 15 TONS FOOD

It is estimated that the three Sunday benefit shows that the Warner Theater management sponsored for the needy of Pittsburgh, the last of which occurred at the Warner Theater last Sunday, netted approximately 15 tons of food and two truck loads of clothing. These shows also demonstrated that the people of Pittsburgh want Sunday motion pictures. The total attendance for the three Sundays figured at more than 35,000.

These shows must have made a big dent in the supplies of canned goods carried in the retail stores because the donations for the three Sundays are estimated at no less than 25,000 cans of food.

All of these supplies of food and clothing came at a time when they were most needed—all the more welcome on account of the holiday season.

Incidentally, all of the help employed each Sunday donated their services—including the union operators, stage hands, even the scrub women. The programs were arranged by Joe Feldman, of the Warner's executive offices; Manager R. H. Rowe, of the Warner Theater, handled the crowds.

The Sun-Telegraph was the only newspaper in Pittsburgh to carry announcements of these benefit shows.

Dake, Chess Expert, To Play Blindfolded

ARTHUR DAKE, 22

Title Seeker Will Give Exhibition Here Tomorrow

Arthur Dake, 22, American chess player, who is a contender for the world championship, will give an exhibition at the Pittsburgh Chess Club, Investment Building, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. He will play blindfolded. Louis Joffe, club secretary, suggests members who desire to play, or the public, bring their own boards.

Dake is the only American to win from Dr. Alexander Alekhine, world champion, and was a member of the American chess team which last year won the team championship in Prague from the Czechoslovakian team. The latter will try to regain the trophy next June at the World's Fair in Chicago.

Dake, born in Portland, Ore., learned the chess moves years ago in the Portland Y. M. C. A. A newspaper publisher sent him on a tour, and he became champion of the Marshall Chess Club in New York. Dake said today:

"I hope some day to bring the championship back to America. The last American to hold it was Paul Murphy, and that was long ago, 1850.

"Thrills? of course there are thrills in chess. Two years ago I had the great Capablanca beaten, but the gallery got me and I lost. It took a year to get over that."

Balked by the refusal of the Governor of Iowa to honor papers from Gov. Gifford Pinchot, County Detective Michael McDermott returned from Ayr, Ia., empty handed last night. Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

The Christmas holidays always bring weddings and engagements galore, and a certain Dan Cupid was as busy as usual this year. Today the Frank T. Pages, of Aylesboro avenue, make known the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Thomas O'Donnell Murray, son of Mrs. Katherine A. Murray, of Wallingford street.

* * *

A gay holiday audience drifted into the Nixon last night to see and hear "Face the Music" and a vividly gowned gathering it was. One of the most unusual and attractive gowns I saw there was of shell pink, all over shirred crepe, and was worn by Mrs. Lewis A. Park. Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., chose hyacinth blue pebble crepe with a draped bodice having three-quarter sleeves banded deeply with blue fox. Laura Evans was there, too, in white satin having the decolletage studded with rhinestones. Most stunning was her wrap of gold cloth with cuffs and a tippet collar of mink.

As they entered the house I noticed the Alexander Laughlin Robinsons and the Junior William C. Robinsons. Mrs. A. L. Robinson wore Harvard red rough crepe with a cape forming brief sleeves and a cowl neckline, and the latter appeared in white crepe with an ermine coat and her corsage was of white orchids.

Florece Carroll. I caught a glimpse of, and the James O. Flowers, with Mrs. Flower in black velvet. Mrs. John McKelvy I saw, and Mrs. William A. Duckham, in a garnet red ensemble with a grey squirrel tippet, and red turban. The Frederick Gwinners III were chatting with friends in the lobby during intermission, and Mrs. Gwinner's costume was of black crepe with a deep cape heavily fringed. Mrs. John W. Ritchie chose black crepe with a white jacket and Genevieve Bell wore Paddy green crepe. Mrs. George H. Love was there, too, wearing bottle green velvet.

Priscilla Scott Brown, daughter of the James Elwyn Browns, of Sewickley and Gilbertsville, N. Y., and Henry Lothrop Gilbert, Jr., son of Mrs. Henry Lothrop Gilbert and the late Mr. Gilbert, of Gilbertsville and Cambridge, Mass., were married on Christmas Day in St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church, Sewickely. The Very Rev. Francis J. M. Cotter officiated. The ceremony was informal, due to mourning in the Brown family. After the wedding the families had Christmas dinner in the brown home, and later the Gilberts left on their honeymoon. They will live in Cambridge.

The first of the series of evening entertainments for the debutantes, to mark this, the final week of the holiday season, took place last night in the exclusive old Pittsburgh Club when Mrs. Clinton L. Childs gave a ball to present her daughter, Laura, and Laura's sister debutante, Bertha Brooks.

Hollywood roses, which are rose in tone, the bud's gift bouquets and cibotium ferns and bamboos decorated the clubhouse.

Mrs. Childs wore a gown of silver and sapphire blue brocade, and both the debutantes wore white. Laura Childs was in white brocade having a gold thread inwoven, and Bertha Brooks in white net. Mrs. James G. Pontefract, Laura Childs' grandmother, wore black velvet, and Elizabeth Childs, her post-debutante sister, American beauty crepe.

Among the many of the younger set at the party were Georgianna Collin, a debutante, in purple crepe, and Mary Colwell Jennings, also a bud, in white matelasse with an interwoven silver thread and trimmings of bright blue velvet.

Presented At Ball

Martha Yost chose a gown of black satin with a jacket of silver sequins; Anne Rose, blue bagheera, with the bodice cut high in front and low in back, and her sister, Mrs. W. H. Trimble, black velvet, trimmed with sequins.

Ruth Willock was in black crepe, trimmed with orange velvet; Betty Higgins in pale blue crepe having a large bow in back; Lois Tack, white crepe, trimmed with Russian sable; Katherine Collin, white crinkly crepe.

THE SHORT FUR COAT BRINGS A NEW PARISIENNE FASHION

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 27. — Heavy wool suits often take the place of the topcoat in Paris this year. A good part of the responsibility for this new fashion may be laid at the door of the short fur coat—a wrap which demands a separate skirt or an entire dress of wool fabric of topcoat thickness. Often this separate skirt or dress suggested an extra jacket of the same fabric—much on the two-pants-suit principle.

* * *

IN ANY event, the heavy suit has definitely arrived. It is an accepted Paris fashion; even to the point of fitting into the scheme of formal dress. Suits of heavy black woolen, with silver fox scarfs or little capes of black or white ermine, replace the afternoon dress.

* * *

THE SUIT in the sketch is, however, of the informal variety. Its coloring is bright—a vivid red—marked with chevrons of black that alternate a wide stripe with a narrow one. It is cut collarless, all the better to wear scarfs of wool or fur, and may be worn with or without a belt.

* * *

THE DETACHABLE fur collar and belt are done as if they were fabric. The fur itself—black poulain—lends itself well to this treatment and forms a flat collarette about the shoulders as well as an upstanding collar that is not in the least bulky. The belt is fastened together under a triple knot of black braid—an ornament which is repeated on the fur collar.

White House Drab for Holiday With Hoovers Away

WASHINGTON.—(AP.)—Washington needed the rare snow scenes that gave holiday spirit last week, for much of the customary Yuletide glitter was gone, with a going-way Christmas planned by the White House family.

The President and Mrs. Hoover, after three holiday seasons spent here, chose Florida for the fourth. No lively Hoover grandchildren were coming for colorful Christmas parties. Nor would Alan Hoover invite the debutantes to dancing in the East Room.

The New Years reception, always dazzling with diplomatic decorations and military uniforms, was canceled, as was its corollary, the diplomatic breakfast.

For a capital which likes its gay private parties to eddy about events termed "official," Mrs. John Garner struck the cheeriest Christmas note.

She said she was giving serious thought to the social phases of her approaching role as Vice President's wife—dispelling some of the gloom of those who were afraid that the simplicity-loving Garners would avoid all social events.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

People Who Are Lonely Can Earn Friends and Love

She's just an old maid,

Yep. We thought they went out with hoopskirts, too; but Lonely says they're still with us, and she's Exhibit A, and she's so sorry for herself that she's thinking seriously of Ending It All. Then maybe we'll be sorry!

But is she doing anything to mend matters? Nope. She's just sitting around Feeling Blue, and moaning, "I don't blame the boys for not liking me! I have nothing to offer them!"

Is that the Spirit That Wins? You tell her!

Dear Miss Robinson:

You have had many problems in your column, but I have never seen one like mine, so I am hoping that you will answer this, and give me some solution for it. I am desperately unhappy.

I am what is commonly known as an "old maid." I just don't seem to fit in anywhere. I have dozens of girl friends, but I spend practically every evening alone, retiring at 9 o'clock always for lack of something better to do.

Of course, two or three nights a week there are movies to go to, but outside of that there is nothing to occupy my time. My girl friends are either married or have beaux, so you can see they have no time for me.

I could go places every evening if I had an escort. But how can a couple keep on entertaining just one lonely girl? Once or twice is all right, yes, but not for a steady diet. So you see I am just out of everything.

CONSIDERED SUICIDE

I have been dragged along on some blind dates, but unfortunately I seem to be one of those girls without beauty, charm or brains.

I dress well and keep myself neat and clean, but that is the only recommendation I can give myself.

I don't blame the men for not liking me. I have nothing to offer.

Just what does a girl like myself do in a case like this? I have contemplated suicide plenty of time, and probably one of these days I'll summon up enough courage to go through with it, but surely there must be something in store for me. Please help me. LONELY.

If there something in store for you?

There certainly is, sister—if you have the gumption to go after it. If you haven't, there isn't—and you don't deserve anything. It's up to you!

EARN FRIENDS

You say you haven't either beauty, charm or brains. Hooey! Maybe you haven't a face that would launch a thousand ships, but that's no sign you need to sit like a bump on a log and moan about your martyrdom. You haven't been picked on by a Cruel Fate. You're picking on yourself. Plenty of homely girls have found love; but they didn't find it by wheezing or whining.

You haven't any charm? Then develop some. You "have nothing to offer?" Make something! You "go to bed at 9 o'clock for lack of something better to do?" Find something better to do!

Join a few study clubs or a dance club. Invite a few friends in for the evening. Dig up something interesting to talk about—something that will interest other folks as well as yourself—so you won't be a Fifth Wheel when someone asks you out.

If you want friends and love earn them! Quit mooning around thinking what a poor fish you are, and learn to be sunny, friendly, sympathetic companion. Stop being a stick, and get human.

Give warmth and you'll get it. Create joy and you'll find it!

Clever Girls Happier Than 'Animated Clothes Racks'—Fay King

BETTER A WELL STOCKED MIND, THAN A WELL STOCKED WARDROBE
IN TIME THE FRIVOLOUS LITTLE GESTURES OF FASHION SEEM SO FADED AND FUTILE!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

How often in our daily contacts we meet girls of modest means but alert minds and personalities, who attract our attention and admiration.

And how much more interesting they are than other girls who seem to have everything on their backs and nothing in their heads.

Girls with intelligence, active and interested, do not envy these animated clothes racks who may be prettier and more fashionable at the moment.

Their day of triumph is so short, and the days to come will be so dull.

To the end they will "doll up" believing that to know how to look "smart" is all the knowledge worth acquiring.

But the futile boredom known only to those who have no mental resources will blight their declining days.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Works Out Code Message Sent by Marion

I did not open the little black book that Katherine had sent to us, but for several minutes I sat with it in my hand debating a question that beat upon my brain insistently.

Should I awaken Lillian from her drug-induced sleep, the first she had had since we received the terrible news of the disappearance of Marion and Carolyn from Whitney Hall? Or should I wait until she had had her sleep out?

No matter what information we could glean from Marion's letter, illuminated by her old, childish code book, we could not act upon it until the return of the men; and if there had been any reasonable delay in Katherine's search for the book, a delay Lillian herself expected, we should not have had it for another hour at least.

I decided to give her that hour of sleep, although my decision was hedged with misgivings. But I dared not stay longer in Mary's room, for fear Lillian might waken, so I stole noiselessly back along the corridor, and easing myself into the chair nearest the door, prepared to wait the hour I had allotted myself.

LILLIAN WAKENS

It was less than five minutes afterward, however, before I heard Lillian say softly, "Yes, darling," and knew that she was dreaming of her idolized daughter. Then, after an instant of silence, during which I dared not breathe, a low moan, so filled with anguish that I never shall forget its sound, came to me and I rushed into the other room, knowing that my friend had wakened to the awful realization of her loss, but knowing also the only palliative I could offer her.

"I have the code book, dear," I said quickly, as if I had heard nothing. "Mary just brought it. Record-breaking time! Katherine put her hands on it first thing. What can I get you? Some coffee? Here are your clothes."

I knew better than to suggest that she rest an instant longer. Indeed, she was out of bed before I had finished talking, but she swayed as she reached for her clothing.

"Sit down," I said sharply. "I'll help you dress. You'll be all right in a minute."

She did not protest, and I dressed her as I would a child. Then I brought a cold wet cloth and sponged her face and hands.

"Sit over here by the window," I said, "and look this over while I order some coffee. I am faint for a cup myself."

She obeyed me, and I telephoned for coffee, toast and iced grapefruit juice, while over the mouthpiece I watched her narrowly.

WORKS OUT MESSAGE

The hands that held the book were trembling, and her lips were not steady, but I knew that she was getting herself in hand, and when I turned away from the telephone she was palpably ready for action.

"What can I use for a desk?" she queried.

"There's a folding card table in the next room," I volunteered.

"Just the thing. And will you please give me the photograph of that letter, and some paper and pencils? The hotel stationery will do."

I brought everything to her, and she went feverishly to work, stopping resentfully only when I insisted that she drink some hot coffee and eat a bit of the toast. Five minutes later she was back at her task, while I watched her, fascinated but afraid to speak, lest I break the magic spell she was weaving from the code book.

I was not near enough to disturb her, but I could see what she was doing. At the left of her sheets of paper she was setting down, as if they were columns of figures, words and phrases from Marion's letter. At their right she was putting in words from the code book, and then comparing the columns.

It was slow work and in some respects baffling, I guessed, for she stopped more than once and frowned over some combination which evidently had not worked out as she expected. But finally she pushed it back and looked over at me with eyes that held pride mingled with terror.

"My precious baby!" she said. "She's turned the trick! But do we dare go after them?"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Poor School Grades Do Not Indicate Stupidity

Report cards from school make many children and their parents unhappy. Today, I want to remind you that poor marks are often beyond the control of the child. Many such reports can be traced to lack of proper food, poor eyesight, defective hearing and other physical defects.

Dr. Copeland

Of course a child may be backward in his school work because of a mental handicap. Such a youngster has difficulty in getting along with his playmates. He is unable to keep up with his grade and has repeated failures in his work. This particular child should not be subjected to severe discipline, scolding or ridicule.

The mentally backward child often enters school when the parent or the teacher is unaware of his handicap. In some instances, however, the fond parent suspects her child of being backward, but because of foolish pride does not face the fact. This is the wrong attitude to assume. It is only by close cooperation of parents, teacher and doctor that such children can be helped.

Certain signs suggest mental backwardness. For example, an infant who is unable to hold the head erect at six months and who cannot sit alone at 10 months, or walk at 18 months, should be examined for physical and mental defects. If a 3-year-old child does not talk and is fretful and difficult to handle, it is best to have an expert check the mental development.

Mental backwardness may be traced to some physical disorder. Children who are chronically ill are slow in their school work. Serious defects of vision and hearing are stumbling blocks to proper growth. Diseased and enlarged tonsils and adenoids hinder the school child in his work.

When the physical defects are discovered and remedied, the child's school work immediately improves. When overlooked and not recognized at an early age, these defects may seriously interfere with the future health and welfare of the child.

If you have recently inspected your children's report cards and are not satisfied with the marks, I would suggest that you talk with your physician. It is important for you to determine if it is not possible to improve or remove any physical defect that your child may possess.

Never scold a child because of a poor report card. Please bear in mind that the cause may be beyond the child's control. Good health is essential to proper physical and mental growth. It is particularly important for the mentally backward child.

Visit the school your child attends. Consult with the teacher. If you have any suggestion to offer I am sure she will follow your advice. In return, follow any suggestions she may offer you. Let me say once more—if the child's backwardness is due to a physical defect, consult with your doctor.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

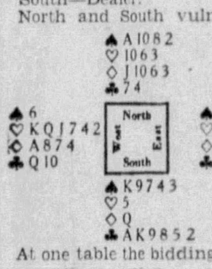
The Strategy of Bidding

The purpose of partnership bidding is to convey correct information to your partner, even at the cost of enlightening your opponents. The opponents of those who have opened the bidding sometimes establish listening-posts to hear what their adversaries may say, and find it an advantage to permit the conversation to continue and thereby gain a clue to the successful defense, if defense is available. At other times it appears advisable to attempt to shut out a response from the partner of the Opening bidder by making a Jump Overcall, even on rather weak holdings. Such a situation occurred in the recent National Team-of-Four Match, when a team representing the Bridge World met the team captained by Mr. P. Hal Sims.

The hand was:

South—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



North: ♠ A 10 8 2 ♡ 10 6 3 ◇ J 10 6 3 ♣ 7 4

West: ♠ 6 ♡ K Q J 7 4 2 ◇ A 8 7 4 ♣ Q 10

East: ♠ Q J 5 ♡ A 9 8 ◇ K 9 5 2 ♣ J 6 3

South: ♠ K 9 7 4 3 ♡ 5 ◇ Q ♣ A K 9 8 5 2

At one table the bidding went:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	3 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

The result was that West made three hearts exactly, through careful and accurate play. A club was opened, the first two rounds being won by the Ace and King, and a third club led to prevent a discard later. West, however, did not ruff, but discarded his losing spade, as he knew it must be a loser in any event. He drew the adverse trumps, leaving one trump in Dummy. The second round of trumps was won in the Dummy and ruffed in the closed hand. North having returned a small spade after ruffing the third round of clubs. Now a small diamond was led and won by the King in Dummy, South's singleton Queen dropping. The last spade was led from Dummy and trumped in the closed hand, and now a small diamond was laid down and North was helpless. He won the trick, but regardless of what card he returned, West fulfilled his contract.

A very accurate use of the elimination play.

It is, of course, apparent that West could have obtained the same result by laying down the Ace of diamonds and later finessing against North, but this method of play would not have been as accurate as the plan actually adopted.

At the other table, for this was a team-of-four match, the teammates of the East and West players described above, opened the bidding with one spade and eventually played the hand at four spades, which was made. The Jump Overcall was not used by West in this case, and the Opening bid facilitated the reaching of the correct contract.

While many fine players would have preferred to open South's hand with one club, due to the fact that the suit was so much stronger and that the matter of ruffing was immediately presented, there is no doubt that, in this case, the Opening spade bid pointed the way to the reaching of the correct final contract. In support of spades, North's hand was of considerable value, but in support of clubs it was probably trickless, except for the Ace of spades.

TODAY'S QUESTION

South deals and bids two hearts; North responds with a bid of two notrump. South now bids three hearts. What should North bid with the following hand?

♠ 10 9 8 6 5 2 ♡ J 2 ◇ 9 6 3 ♣ J 3

Answer—Three spades. The spade suit is biddable and partner has already been warned that the hand contains less than 1 honor-trick.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When putting on makeup for daytime appearance, pull up the window shade, place a magnifying mirror on the window ledge. Never trust to electric light. Hit-and-miss decorating of the feminine phiz is responsible for the prejudice some individuals have against beauty artifice.

The coiffure must be neat, it must be feminine. An undulation is almost a necessity, since few women look well with straight hair. Button curls, snail curls, sculptured curls decorate the rear. The tendency is to keep the hair pretty well away from the nape of the neck. The slanted parting is a new note. So is the slanted bang worn with the side parting.

Too bad that the gilt must wear off fair, blonde hair as the years advance, but so it usually happens. Continuous bleaching brings that white-straw shade which is so plainly something got out of a bottle that more than one addict of peroxide has taken what seems a tragic step. They have had their locks dyed light brown. The change brings about a remarkable improvement in appearance.

No bleach will have any effect upon the sallow skin, which more often than not is the result of faulty elimination. The afflicted one should outline a health plan for herself. Take orange and lemon juice before breakfast, cut out heavy foods, see that the intestinal tract performs its work normally. Deep breathing will wash out her lungs, six glasses of water a day will assist the kidneys in their work, the daily bath with warm soap suds and a heavy brush will help the skin function.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

A grand substitute for the top coat is the three-quarter cape of tweed. Such a model is worn by one smart woman and it is made of rose-colored tweed with a huge collar of lynx. It is worn with a matching tweed suit.

More than a touch of green is to be found in a new coat for evening wear. It is entirely covered with jade green beads that have silver reflections. This is especially effective in the big sleeves.

Persia is in the news as a style influence. One modiste has success with a real Persian cuff turban. This she makes in multi-hued faconne velvet in a mixture of green, red and blue. In the center front is an aigrette brush of green, red and white feathers.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Acknowledging Condolences

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

On receiving cards of sympathy after losing a relative, should one answer these cards, and if so, after what length of time, and how should one answer them? That is, what words should one use? P.

Yes, this kind of expression of sympathy should be answered by personal notes.

As soon as we are able, we write a note to each person who has sent us any form of condolence, notes, messages, flowers.

These notes needn't be but one or two sentences long. Something like this:

Dear Mary:

How very kind you were, and how friendly, to send me such a dear note of sympathy and understanding. I appreciated it so much, and thank you with all my heart for it.

The beautiful roses that you sent, too, brought me your sweet sympathy, and thank you also for their beauty and the message of their loveliness.

Sincerely,

Bridal Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine is to be married very soon, and there is one thing that remains doubtful in her mind. She is having no bridesmaids and is to be dressed in a formal gown, jacket and hat. Is it necessary to have a maid of honor or a matron of honor and a best man? M.

It isn't ever necessary, really, to have attendants, even one attendant. But it is customary for both the bride and the groom to have at least one attendant. And, even when the bride doesn't have an attendant, the groom usually has his best man.

Household Hints

Keep a steel crochet hook near the sink to remove any lint that may accumulate around the strainer in the sink.

Patent leather shoes can be kept nice without fear of cracking, if the following is applied with a soft duster and the shoes then polished. To four ounces of vaseline add one ounce of ceresine, and mix well in an enamel pan.

When making mint sauce, if the mint is dipped in the vinegar before being chopped, it will not turn brown, but will retain its bright fresh color.

Tarnished silver will clean easily if rubbed with a soft cloth dipped in dry powdered magnesia. If badly tarnished, apply it first wet and then dry. Polish afterwards in either case in the usual way.

Be Sensible about the FLU

With every epidemic of influenza comes an epidemic of advice. But if you have the flu—or you even suspect its presence—there's just one thing to do. Call a doctor immediately.

There are, however, some simple and sensible precautions everyone should take at this time. Try to keep in good physical condition. Guard against colds or sore throat by avoiding contact with all coughers and sneezers. The germs of disease will often fasten upon the man or woman whose vitality has been lowered by a severe cold.

If you should catch a cold, Bayer Aspirin will help fight it. Keep a supply of these tablets in the house and take them according to directions at the first sign of any cold. Crush three Bayer Aspirin tablets in half a glass of water and gargle as directed, if there is any soreness of the throat.

Be sure to use the genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets stamped with the Bayer cross.

Above all, don't delay calling your doctor if you have reason to suspect that you may have caught the flu.

HOGAN WINS PLACE ON HONOR ROLL

THE PUNTING OF Bob Hogan is an item that promises to help the Pitt gridders in the Rose Bowl game next Monday. By his excellent kicking during the regular season, Hogan has earned a place among the best punters Pitt has known. The list of front-grade booters at the Oakland university is not a long one. Probably the ace of the lot was Chalky Williamson, of 1913-14-15, who added to a wealth of native ability—and kickers must be born—a heap of acquired skill that came to him through the coaching of Nubs Harlan, old Princeton star. The best before Williamson was Tex Richards 1908-09-10. The latter's punting, in which he averaged close to 50 yards, was a feature of the 1910 season, when the Panthers were not scored on.

Bob Hogan

Jess Brown, a left-footed kicker, stood out from 1923 to 1925, and from 1925 to 1927 the high standard was maintained by Jimmy Hagan. The best between Hagan and Hogan was Rip Collins.

TOM CLARK, bull pen catcher and pitching coach for the Giants, has set two objectives for himself in 1933, and is confident of reaching both. One is to make a pitcher of Roy Parmalee and the other is to make a catcher of Frank Healey.

Clark predicts a star battery will be the outcome of his efforts. He says Parmalee has more stuff than any other pitcher in the National League and needs only control to make him an ace, and he sees more natural mechanical ability in Healey than in any other young catcher in the major ranks.

SHOULD GIRLS PLAY basketball? Lon Jourdet, floor coach at the University of Pennsylvania almost continually since 1915, replies emphatically in the negative. He says the game is too rough for them.

As to the strenuous nature of the court pastime, Jourdet says he took football players who had been trained on the gridiron all season and were supposed to be in the very pink of condition, worked them out in basketball and found them washed up in five minutes.

JOURDET ARGUES THAT if a football player, primed to the utmost for a season's competition, can't stand the gaff in basketball, it is impossible for a girl to play the game without suffering some very definite reaction from such a strain. He opposes girls' playing any game in which there is physical contact, contending that they are not physically constructed to stand it. Boys, on the other hand, start in when very young, climbing trees, running, jumping, riding bicycles and living in the outdoors. They build for themselves a foundation, he says, so that when the times arrives for football, basketball, track and other strenuous sports, they are ready. This having gone on for generations, part of their ruggedness is hereditary, whereas the woman athlete is comparatively new.

ACCORDING TO REPORTS from the East, there may be a change in the circuit of the National Hockey League before Pittsburgh returns to that body. Col. John S. Hammond, who resigned recently as president of the New York Rangers, is said to be considering a plan to put a club in Brooklyn.

John S. Hammond

Just where the Colonel expects to get the franchise is not explained. The only one not being operated at present is that belonging to Pittsburgh, and local men holding an interest in it, associated with a New Yorker, say the intention is to hold it until the time is ripe for a resumption.

FOOTBALL FOLLOWERS MAY argue as to whether the Four Horsemen team of 1924 or one of the others up to and including the Caridco-Schwartz machine of 1930 was the greatest ever turned out by Notre Dame, but according to Joe Brandy it was none of them. Joe names the team of 1919-20, on which he was quarterback.

"That was Notre Dame's brainiest and most versatile team," Brandy writes in a letter to Frank Graham, "and the most formidable, defensively and offensively. As for speed, it was as fast as that of 1924, or any from 1920 to 1930, with Gipp, Barry, Mohardt, Wynne, Danny Coughlin, Little Dutch Bergman, Walter Miller, Bahan, Grant.

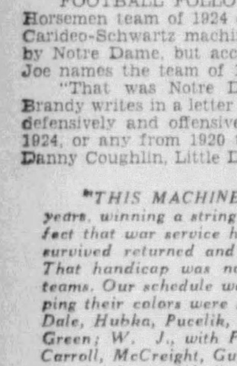
"THIS MACHINE NEVER tasted defeat in more than two years, winning a string of 25 games. And that in spite of the effect that war service had on athletic careers. Those players who survived returned and carried on for Notre Dame and Rockne. That handicap was not experienced by the 1924 and 1929-30 teams. Our schedule was on a par with those of later teams. Dipping their colors were such elevens as Nebraska, with her Munns, Dale, Hubka, Pucelik, Weller; the Army, with Oliphant, French, Green; W. J., with Fats Henry, an all-time all-America tackle, Carroll, McCreight, Guy; Michigan Aggies, Wisconsin, Northwestern, Purdue and Indiana. Unfortunately, the radio had not been popularized, and the national news agencies didn't know who we were, or where from.

"CONSIDER THIS TEAM in comparison with the Four Horsemen and the 1929-1930 outfit. All three were up to snuff offensively, with the bulge, if any, for the 1919-20 outfit because it contained a Gipp. The Horsemen had a Crowley, a Layden, a Miller and a Stuhldreher, but not a George Gipp. The 1930 team had a Brill, a Schwartz, an O'Connor, a Caridco, a Savoldi, a Mullen, but no Gipp.

"Defensively, all three were able to care for themselves, but the straw would turn the indicator to the 1920 team, with such linesmen as Ojay Larsen, the one-hand passer; Hunk Anderson, the original Clipper Smith, Eddie Anderson, Dave Hayes, Slip Madigan, Zoia, Rydjewski, McGuire, Philbin, Degree, Andrews and Trafton. It was the brainiest, smartest organization in the history of South Bend teams. In 1920 it was playing 1932 football with the best brain of all time, past or present, George Gipp, R. I. P."

THE BELIEF OF New York's boxing powers that they have everything running in such perfect style they can get along without a working agreement with Pennsylvania or any other state is not shared by many of the men operating under their present system.

A group of 15, with Billy Roche as the leader, it pointing out to the Empire State Commission plenty of ways in which the game can be improved. For one thing a change in the license fees of small clubs is desired. The only distinction now is in the classification of the cities. It is held that small clubs in New York City should not have to pay any more than clubs in third-class cities, the seating capacity being the same.



Billy Roche

ANOTHER REQUEST IS that referees and judges having no other means of livelihood be given the preference over others who have one, two or three jobs. It is said that one judge, holding a $6,500 political job in Washington, not only gets frequent assignments in Madison Square Garden, but the clubs must pay his transportation from Washington, though he rides on a railroad pass. The committee wants as commissioners experienced boxing men who will ban matchmaker-managers and kickbacks.

HALL, STEVENS SUCCESSORS TO BE NAMED

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Confronted by no such pressing problems as beset them last year, when the football death toll brought on a public demand for a change in the rules, college coaches and athletic directors today open their annual four-day clinic on the 1932 gridiron campaign.

Election of a successor to the late Edward K. Hall as chairman of the football rules committee appears the only important problem waiting the annual gathering of the coaches and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

RULES COMMENDED

Although the deaths from football in the season now drawing to a close has been only seven less than the 50 recorded in 1931, the new rules adopted last year are generally conceded to have made the game less hazardous and met with general approval.

There may be some brisk skirmishing over the "dead ball" rule, which automatically stopped the play when any part of the carrier's body except his hands or feet touched the ground, but even that provision has many staunch supporters, and the rules committee is expected to be given a mandate to let the rules alone for a year.

Several persons long closely connected with football and with Hall have been mentioned as his successor with William S. Langford, for 25 years secretary of the committee, most prominently named. Walter Okeson, commissioner of Eastern officials, and Amos Alonzo Stagg, retiring coach of football at Chicago University, also have been mentioned as possible chairmen.

In addition to the coaches' association, which meets today and tomorrow, and the N. C. A. A., which holds its sessions Thursday and Friday, the track coaches also will meet here tomorrow, and the sport brotherhood will hold its annual luncheon today with Stagg as the honored guest.

SASSE TO SPEAK

Among those scheduled to address the coaches today are Floyd Eastwood, of New York University, who will report on football injuries and fatalities; Gil Dobie, Cornell coach, and Lou Little, head mentor at Columbia; Maj. Ralph I. Sasse, retiring coach at West Point; Adam Walsh, assistant coach at Yale, and Dr. Eddie O'Brien, noted Eastern referee.

The meeting will continue through tomorrow with the annual banquet and "brown derby" story-telling contest that night. By that time too the coaches will have drafted some member as president to succeed Dr. Marvin A. Stevens, retiring Yale head coach. Stevens is the fifth coach to lose his job while holding the presidency and the feeling is growing that the office is a jinx.

A. A. U. BUNGLED CASE--BABE

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Mildred Babe Didrikson celebrated Christmas in announcing that she had signed contracts for three ventures in her sudden leap to professionalism.

The one-woman track team from Dallas, Tex., is going to make some athletic "shorts" in the movies, do a bit of radio work, and also write for a syndicate. She said:

"So far I have three jobs—all of them good ones, all of them dignified. 'Endorsing' is not on the list, nor will it be."

Miss Didrikson took her pen in hand to take a parting shot at the National A. A. U., which she said had "bungled" in suspending her in the first place. She wrote:

"By their belated action in reinstating me they confessed their realization that they had bungled. I declined to accept the reinstatement, made a few playful and I think justified, comments, on the inordinate length and multiplicity of their rules and regulations. I have never characterized A. A. U. rules as 'ambiguous.' I did say there are a lot of them—this is a fact. Also that the rule book was rather thick, which is a matter of opinion. I was only stating mine."

Fight Results

At Motor Square Garden—Tommy Freeman and Gorilla Jones drew (referee's decision), 10 rounds. Joe Marcus defeated Patsy Hennigan (referee's decision), 8 rounds; Jacquette Elverillo defeated Joey Speigal, 6 rounds; Carl Montebano defeated I. T. Battles, 6 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Eddie Cool defeated Lew Massey, 10 rounds; Al Ettore won by a technical knockout over George Parka, 3 rounds; Young Firpo defeated Pete Nebo, 10 rounds; Harry Serody and Benny Schwartz drew, 6 rounds; Bobby Dechter defeated Jimmy Mack, 6 rounds; Billy Ketchel won by a technical knockout over Johnny O'Keefe, 4 rounds; Al Diamond knocked out Joe Corelli, 3 rounds; Joe Duca knocked out Freddie Kane 6 rounds; Bobby Abel defeated Ruby Budmark, 6 rounds; Jack Tracy defeated Harry Murphy, 6 rounds.

At Scranton—Frankie Cawley knocked out Sergt. Billy Higgins, 2 rounds; Charley (Trader) Horn knocked out Joe Pirrone, 4 rounds.

AT LANCASTER, Pa.—Ross Stoy defeated Joey Hadfield, 8 rounds; Johnny Duca defeated Joe Kuhns, 6 rounds.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY (NO ISSUE YESTERDAY): FACE TO FACE WITH SANTA CLAUS—I felt very solemn when, only a month ago, I stood silently before the tomb of the great patron of children in the Church of San Nicola in Bari, Italy. Here beneath the silver altar of the church are buried the bones of Saint Nicholas, who died at his Bishopric in Myra, Asia, on December 6, 342 A. D. The mortal remains of the Saint were carried away on May 9, 1087, and brought here to be interred in the crypt. The patron saint of many picturesque and varied vocations is chiefly remembered for his association with Christmas, but here in his adopted home town the Day of Santa Claus is curiously enough not Christmas, but May 8, when great crowds of pilgrims celebrate his festival with splendor and piety. MUSSOLINI'S RECORD—The present dictator of Italy, who left his native country in 1904, had many unpleasant encounters with the police of Switzerland, France and Austria, in addition to the police authorities of his native Italy. For "fomenting strikes," for being a "tramp without any means of subsistence," for "falsifying his passport" and for political delinquencies Mussolini was arrested 11 times. In addition to minor terms, he served a year in the jail of Forli and five months in Milan. He was expelled from Switzerland five times and from Austria and France once each. Not until he was Prime Minister of Italy did the authorities of Zurich remove his likeness from the Rogues Gallery to make it possible for him to come to Lausanne. SANTA CLAUS THE FIRST IMMIGRANT—In 1623, 30 Walloon families living in Amsterdam arrived in what is now Greater New York in the good ship "Nieuw Nederland," under Capt. May, skipper. They were the first immigrants to settle permanently in this part of the New World, but they were preceded into the harbor by the figurehead of their ship, representing the well-known Santa Claus (Saint Nicholas) of Christmas fame. He came and saw and conquered, and now is our annual guest on the eve of the Festival of Peace. WHERE IS NOWHERE?—Where the Greenwich Meridian crosses the Equator, there being neither longitude nor latitude.

TOMORROW—THE UNDERGROUND MOUNTAIN.

HOGAN SHOWS GREAT FORM ON PUNTS

TUCSON, Dec. 27.—It's run, run, run for the Pitt Panthers today, and it will be run, run, run for the Panthers for the remainder of the week as Coach Jock Sutherland indicated that his rough work in preparation for Southern California was all over, and that from now on until Friday when he plans to start to ease up signal practice and dummy scrimmage would occupy most of the players' time.

The Panthers had what was probably the last scrimmage of the year yesterday, the session meeting with but little approval from Sutherland and drew quite a few Sutherland scowls.

Jock was only fairly well pleased with the varsity's actions in stopping the power attack of Bill Kern's "Southern California" eleven. And to the few who witnessed the drill, the question of what happened to John Luch became even more puzzling, for the Wheeling youth was knocking first-string linemen and backs right and left as he emulated Clark of the Trojans.

TEAM NEARS PEAK

Unless the team leaves Friday instead of Saturday the end of the hard work will come Thursday, for Ralph Shanor and Bud Moore have assured Jock that his team will be in pretty fair physical shape by then.

The waste basket given by Santa Claus Heller to Mike Sebastian for Christmas, must have had its effect, for the Sharon pride and joy went tearing all over the field to make sensational catches of Bob Hogan's booming punts.

Incidentally, if the Coast climate reacts to Hogan's kicking as Arizona's does, Rose Bowl folks are going to see some great kicking. Few of the Meadville boy's boots have gone less than 60 yards. However, Hogan has been willing to sacrifice distance for position. It being no part of the plan of the Pitt board of strategy for Warburton gets his hands on any Pitt punt.

TROJANS GAIN WEIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—University of Southern California's football team, returned from its brief vacation with added tonnage which Coach Howard Jones plans to work down in an extended drill on defense against Pittsburgh plays.

Coach Jones was pleased to see his players packing more weight, for it diminished worries that the Trojans might be physically stale for the game at Pasadena, January 2.

The Panther plays as executed by Southern California's third string eleven failed to get anywhere yesterday against the first and second teams. Ernie Smith, trombone-tooting tackle, was all over the place. He even intercepted a pass for good measure.

Coach Jones will shift practice to afternoons beginning today, and contemplates hard chores until Thursday. After that the team will taper off with a light workout in the Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Saturday, and a good brisk walk Sunday.

The team continued to steer clear of injuries and serious illness, although Smith and George Lady, a sub tackle, had slight colds.

EAST GRIDDERS POLISH PASSES

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—With Christmas celebrations over and nothing further to interrupt practice programs, Eastern and Western grid stars will buckle down today to heavy work in preparation for the annual Shrine football game here January 2.

That the East will seek victory through the air and the West through good old-fashioned goals from the field has become increasingly evident.

At their Stanford University training quarters, the Easterners yesterday concentrated on passes with Harry Newman, Michigan quarterback, and Pug Rentner, Northwestern halfback, rifling the ball to all corners of the field. Coaches Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley said Newman was impressive in passing scrimmage. Bob Rowe, Colgate fullback, also came in for fresh praise.

Coaches Orin Hollingbery and Dana Bible sent their Western charges through a brisk session at University of California's field at Berkeley. Four of the boys continued to go to kicking school, with Hank Schaldach, California halfback, specializing in drop-kicking, and Bill Morgan, Oregon tackle, Ernie Caddel, Stan[illegible] halfback and George Sand[illegible] Washington State halfback, t[illegible] boots from placement betwee[illegible]ne 20 and 40-yard lines.

Fans Jeer Boxing Farce By Freeman and Jones

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

The best thing that can be said of the Christmas boxing show at Motor Square Garden yesterday afternoon is that the customers, of whom there were few enough, could have had a better time staying at home and playing with the kids' toys.

Gorilla Jones, of Akron, O., Negro middleweight, and Tommy Freeman, of Cleveland, went through a dancing skit jokingly billed as the main bout, to a referee's decision of a draw, with the judges disagreeing, Frank Brown voting for Freeman and Jock Simco for Jones.

FANS WALK OUT

The fans, judging from their continual booing and catcalling for action and even concerted clapping of hands and stamping of feet, would have been much pleased if Referee Red Robinson had shown some respect for their intelligence and called it no contest in the early stages and tossed both fighters out of the ring. The less easily taken in customers began to walk out on the farce as early as the fifth round.

Freeman, who shows signs of the wear and tear of a long and tough career in the ring, may have been doing as well as he was able to do, but Jones evidently forgot to leave his blankets back home in Akron. The bout was an orgy of pulled and overreached punches and prolonged clinches, and does not merit the dignity of extended description. In short, it wasn't even a good act.

MARCUS WINS SEMI-FINAL

The semi-final of eight rounds also was a sleep producer, with Joe Marcus, of Braddock, winning all of the way over Patsy Hennigan, of Clairton, who wouldn't lead. It was Marcus' second victory over Hennigan, who will have to do more fighting in his bouts or go back to openers. Strangely, the judges disagreed on this one, with Simco voting for Hennigan and Brown for a draw, with Referee Al Grayber saving the situation by turning in his slip for Marcus, who did all of the work and made his opponent appear foolish.

Jacquette Elverillo, local Negro welterweight, bested Joey Speigal, of Uniontown, in the second bout, a hard-fought affair, and Carl Montebano, of Braddock, won over I. T. Battles, Erie Negro, in the first bout.

ED PAULIE MARRIES

Ed Paulie, coach at Swissvale High school, joined the ranks of benedicts yesterday when he married Miss Gertrude Piat, of Colombo street. The Rev. I. Teal, of the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony. The couple will reside in Swissvale after an eastern trip.

TECH EXTENDS N.Y.U. SERIES

Carnegie Tech will return to New York in 1933 to battle the New York University Violets in football.

Previously, this series between the Tartans and Violets has been on a home-and-home basis, but last night, before departing for Gotham, where he will attend the annual gathering of the athletic directors and the convention of the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference, Graduate Manager Buddy Overend announced that Tech would face N. Y. U. in the Yankee Stadium on November 25, five days before the annual game with Pitt.

Howard Harpster, Tech's new head football coach, also left last night with Overend for New York, where he'll sit in with the college grid coaches and apply for membership in the association.

Elmer Layden, head mentor of the Dukes, also is booked to attend the gathering, and is to make a talk at tomorrow's session.

At a meeting of the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference, at least one and possibly three new members will be taken into the basketball loop, with the Dukes being considered for membership. Pitt, Tech, West Virginia, Georgetown and Temple are present members of the circuit.

CRICKET MATCH DRAW

HOBART, Tasmania, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The exhibition cricket match between the touring M. C. C. eleven and Tasmania ended in a draw today.

MOUNTS TIED BY DOYLES

The effort of the Broadway Mounts and the J. J. Doyles to clarify the Lightweight Football Conference championship situation wound up in a scoreless tie, and the title is as much on the loose as ever.

The two elevens battled to a scoreless deadlock at Greenlee Field yesterday afternoon. Neither team threatened seriously to score, with the Mounts, the favorites, held on even terms by the hard-fighting Doyles. The muddy field hampered the offensive tactics, particularly the aerial game of the Mounties, throughout.

A replay has been announced, to be staged either Saturday or Sunday of this week. The lineup:

Broadway—Mts.	—0—	Doyles—0.
Dewalt	L. E.	Kettler
Stack	L. T.	Chickett
Lambert	L. G.	Pard
Shepard	C.	Martin
Mullins	R. G.	Natolitano
Ogia	R. T.	Debolt
Reddick	R. E.	Frazier
Flannigan	Q.	Cusick
Kenny	L. H.	Wenk
Noyle	R. H.	O'Halek
Mills	F. B.	Burke

Substitutions—Doyles: Abrams, Deary, Zehor, A. Chickett, Smuda, Kennedy, Henry. Referee—Red Gannon. Umpire—McCarthy. Head linesman—P. Monohan.

Van Fossen's touchdown in the second quarter enabled the Clairton Merchants to defeat Christy Park, 6 to 0, at Clairton yesterday and win the lightweight honors of the upper Monongahela Valley. Van Fossen's punting featured the battle.

ST. LOUIS WINS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The St. Louis team, of St. Louis, defeated the Slavia club, of Cleveland, 6 to 0, in a professional soccer exhibition game here yesterday.

O'DOUL NATIONAL LOOP SWAT KING, FIGURES REVEAL

KLEIN, WANER BROTHERS IN SPOTLIGHT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Frank J. (Lefty) O'Doul, artistic swatter of the Brooklyn Dodgers, led the National League in batting this year by a sizeable margin, it was disclosed today with the publication of the official averages. O'Doul, who also won the crown in 1929, finished the year with a mark of .368. Bill Terry, new pilot of the New York Giants, was second with .350, and Chuck Klein, great player of the Philadelphia Phillies, landed in the third spot, just two points below Terry.

Lefty O'Doul

Once again the famed Waner boys, of Pittsburgh, are to be found among the leaders. Brother Paul, who established a new record for manufacturing two-baggers in amassing 62 of these hits, was fifth in the league in batting average figures. Paul, with a mark of .341, finished just below Chick Hafey. The older of the two brothers took part in all of the Buccaneers' 154 games. Brother Lloyd batted .333 in 134 contests. Capt. Pie Traynor was the next Pirate on the list, with a card of .329.

GREAT YEAR FOR KLEIN

Chuck Klein, the Philly demon, had a remarkable year. Chuck led in scoring runs, 152; in hits, 226; in total bases, 420; in stolen bases, 20, and tied with Melvin Ott, of the Giants, in homers, 38. Babe Herman, now a Cub, led the circuit in three-baggers with 19. Dick Bartell, the Quakers' star shortstop, was out in front in sacrifice hits with 35.

Terry, who batted six home runs in four consecutive days, starting April 19 and including April 22, tied the record held by Klein, established in 1929.

A new pinch-hitting record of five home runs was established by John H. Frederick, of Brooklyn, displacing the former record of three held jointly by Hamilton Hyatt, of Pittsburgh, made in 1913; Fred C. Williams, of Philadelphia, 1928, and Clifford R. Crawford, of New York, 1927.

THREE DURABLE BUCCOS

Ten players took part in 154 games, the complete number played by their clubs. They are Terry and Melvin T. Ott, New York; Klein, Bartell and Arthur C. Whitney, Philadelphia; Paul Waner, Anthony F. Piet and Gus R. Suhr, Pittsburgh; William Herman, Chicago, and Anthony F. Cuccinello, Brooklyn.

The club batting records show Philadelphia leading, with a percentage of .292; also scoring most runs, 844; alloowing most runs to opponents, 796; making most hits, 1,608; aggregating most total bases on hits, 2,438; most two-base hits, 330; most home runs, 122, and most sacrifice hits, 125. New York went to bat most times, 5,530. Pittsburgh made most three-base hits, 90, and most one-base hits, 1,132. St. Louis stole most bases, 92. The league as a whole established a new times-at-bat record, with 43,763, breaking the former record of 43,693, made in 1930.

D. & E. QUINTET WINS, 30-28

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—The Davis-Elkins College basketball team, of West Virginia, wound up with an even split in its two games in the Bay region.

Last night the West Virginians defeated the United Athletic Club, 30 to 28.

Saturday night Davis and Elkins team was declared loser by default, score 2 to 0, in a game with St. Mary's College, at Oakland, after a goal dropped in the basket simultaneously with the final gun tied the count at 32 all.

The tying goal, tossed by Johnson, St. Mary's forward, brought a dispute over the timing, and Cam Henderson, Davis and Elkins coach, ordered his players to the showers, refusing to go into an overtime period.

Henderson, keeping time for the visitors, contended the goal tossed by Johnson hit the hoop after the final time.

U. S. Tennis Team Leads Australians

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—The United States tennis team, playing an Australian team in a match series today, won three of the four contests to take a lead of five to three, with one day of play remaining.

Ellsworth Vines, Jr., who lost yesterday to Harry Hopman, second ranking Australian player, today defeated Australia's No. 1, Jack Crawford, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3; John Van Ryn defeated Vivian McGrath, the 16-year-old star, 6-4, 6-2, and Vines and Keith Gledhill won from Cliff Sproule and McGrath, 6-3, -7, 6-2.

The lone Australian victory was scored by Crawford and Hopman, who upset Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, 3-6, 6-2, 11-9, 4-6, 6-3.

GENE TUNNEY TELLS STORY OF LIFE

Wins American Light-Heavyweight Title — Sells Rickard Idea for $75,000 — Handicapped for Greb Bout

By GENE TUNNEY

Retired Heavyweight Champion

CHAPTER NINETEEN

My first match in Madison Square Garden, which was witnessed by Jack Dempsey, resulted in a technical knockout victory in the second round over Jack Burke, of Pittsburgh. The Burke showing and the subsequent knocking out of Wolf Larson brought me a second match in Madison Square Garden against Eddie O'Hare, a promising, skilful, young light-heavyweight who subsequently met sudden death in doing a somersault into a pile of snow. He landed on a tree stump and broke his back while vacationing in Maine.

Gene Tunney

The decisive victory over O'Hare, before a large crowd in the Garden, secured a match with Battling Levinsky for the light-heavyweight championship of America.

Tex Rickard at this time had started reviving the championship titles of each class. He believed that having a recognized champion would increase interest in the smaller divisions. Rickard liked to develop and promote championship matches; it was an excuse to increase the price of tickets.

TRICKED BY LEVINSKY

Battling Levinsky, who was an old warrior, had met almost every light-heavy and heavyweight, defeating most of them. He had but two black marks on his record, the knockout by Dempsey in three rounds and his knockout by Carpentier in the same time. He was a cunning, wily fighter, acquainted with all the tricks of the game, and, for a little man, able to take surprisingly good care of himself against the big, hard-hitting heavies. He was very game, and ready at any time to take on any opponent. Despite his courage and willingness to fight anyone, I do not believe he scored three knockouts in his long career. He had no punch.

The largest number of people that ever crowded into old Madison Square Garden up to this time witnessed the fight. There were 14,428 paid admissions. This fight took place on Friday, the thirteenth of January, 1922. I won rather easily, but was unable to land solidly on Levinsky's chin.

An amusing incident happened during this fight that brings a smile to my face whenever I think of it. At the beginning of the twelfth and last round, as we came to the center of the ring, Levinsky whispered to me:

"Please let me stay, Gene!"

Having only the kindest feelings toward the old warrior, I relaxed. Whereupon, at the very next exchange, with my guard lowered, the old battler planted a right with all his might on the side of my jaw. It was fortunate for me that Levinsky could not hit. Instead of getting furious, I laughed at myself for being taken in by such an ancient and obvious trick. I was given the decision and the title of light-heavyweight champion of America.

TAKES TITLE SERIOUSLY

I never got the promised diamond studded belt from Tex Rickard. Though Rickard did not think the title important enough to present me the Tex Rickard belt, my new title was taken with dramatic seriousness. I wanted all and sundry to know that the new "champion" was ready to defend his important honors against any and all contenders. Though not confident that I could beat either Harry Greb or Tom Gibbons, I agreed to meet the winner of the match that had been arranged between them. I felt, in all sincerity, that no man had the right to call himself champion of his class unless he was the best man in that class.

It amuses me now to think of the importance I lent the American light heavyweight championship title. The desire to establish myself as the best man in my class involved a principle, however. It was the same principle and attitude toward the newly won world heavyweight championship that inspired me to sign with Tex Rickard on January 4, 1927, to meet the winner of a heavyweight elimination tournament that he was to organize and promote during the winter, spring and summer of 1927.

SELLS RICKARD IDEA

The idea of the elimination tournament was mine. I sold it to Tex Rickard. I felt that unless I could defeat the man who emerged from the tournament I had no right to be called world heavyweight champion. When I say I sold this idea to Tex Rickard, I mean it literally. After Tex and I talked the thing over it was agreed we would sign the contract publicly. By this public signing I became with Rickard a sponsor of the tournament. This we believed would bring increased public attention to the tournament, and, incidentally, increase gate receipts. I demanded $75,000 for sponsoring the idea. It was incorporated in my guarantee of $525,000 for meeting the survivor of the tournament. This was $75,000 more than Tex Rickard ever guaranteed any other fighter.

—The $75,000 was a very small percentage of the profits which Tex made through this tournament. Moreover, this was the first contract of its kind ever to be signed. Before this, it was the custom for all heavyweight champions to choose their own opponents.

The night of the Greb-Gibbons fight in old Madison Square Garden, I was introduced by good old Joe Humphreys as ready to meet the winner. As things later developed, it was fortunate for me that Greb won. Though there is no telling now what would have happened if I had been asked to meet Gibbons at that time rather than Greb, I believed then that I was not seasoned or experienced enough for Gibbons. He probably would have won from me by a knockout.

INJURED BEFORE BOUT

While training for the Greb match, which took place just four months after the Levinsky match, I had the worst possible kind of luck. My left eyebrow was opened, and both hands were sorely injured. I had a partial reappearance of the old left elbow trouble which prevented my using a left jab. Dr. Robert J. Shea, a close friend, who took care of me during my training, thought that a hypodermic injection of adrenalin chloride over the left eye would prevent bleeding when the cut was reopened by Greb. At my request, he injected a hypodermic solution of novocaine into the knuckles of both hands as well. We locked the dressing room door during this performance.

George Engle, Greb's manager, wanting to watch the bandages being put on, came over to my dressing room and found the door bolted. He shouted and banged. We could not allow him in until the doctor had finished his work. Getting in, finally, he insisted that I remove all the bandages so that he could see whether I had any unlawful substance under them. I refused. He made an awful squawk, ranting in and out of the room. I became angry. Eventually I realized that Engle was only trying to protect his fighter and if I let it get my goat that was my hard luck. Moreover, his not being allowed into the dressing room made the situation look suspicious. I unwound the bandages from my hands and satisfied George that all was well.

BUTCHERED BY GREB

In the first exchange in the first round, I sustained a double fracture of the nose, which bled continually until the finish. Toward the end of the first round, my left eyebrow was laid open four inches. I am convinced the adrenalin solution that had been injected so softened the tissue that the first blow or butt I received cut the flesh right to the bone.

In the third round, another cut over the right eye left me looking through a red film. For the better part of 12 rounds, I saw this red phantom-like form dancing before me. I had provided myself with a 50 per cent mixture of brandy and orange juice to take between rounds in the event I became weak from loss of blood. I had never taken anything during a fight up to that time. Nor did I ever again.

What a tough job Tunney gave Doc Bagley, his chief second, that night! Had to use six bottles of adrenalin chloride to stop Gene's cuts! Brandy and orange juice on a badly battered stomach, and medicine afterward that "functioned like seasickness"! Read what is means to "take it" in the ring as described by Tunney when recalling his first and only fistic defeat. You'll agree Chapter XX makes a little classic in the sanguinary saga of sock.

SYNOPSIS

The author thus far has traced his career from the streets of New York's Greenwich Village, through his early club fighter affairs, his experiences with the U. S. Marines in France, his winning of the A. E. F. light-heavyweight crown, and his ring victories upon return to civil life which were interrupted when he went to Canada and Maine to build up his punch-damaged hands. Fourteen pounds overweight (at 188), he makes a poor showing with Soldier Jones in a Dempsey-Carpentier prelim. After months of careful training at Harry McCormack's Red Bank (N. J.) farm, Gene returns to the ring in the fall of 1921 and "decisions" several opponents despite his still sore hands, which were slowly improving, however.

SOCCER TEAMS PLAY TO TIE

By TOM BIRKS

Soccer fans had a listless game served up for their holiday entertainment yesterday afternoon at Englebrook Field, South Park, where a selected team of American-born players opposed a lineup of foreign-born stars. The game went 90 minutes to a 1-1 tie, with 5,000 fans on hand.

With nothing at stake, the players merely went through the motions of playing soccer. Fans missed the dashing brilliance of Buff Donelli, while Johnny Jaap and Mike Bookie, two of the district's outstanding stars, who were billed to appear, failed to get into the game.

The contest started out in very tame fashion. Molly turned in some classy work on the right wing for the homebreds, and finally he lobbed the ball goalwards. Chappell, former Heidelberg star, ran the ball close in and neatly slipped the sphere past Henderson.

In the second half the foreign-born players, led by Kirk, put on the pressure. A cross from the right wing dropped at the feet of Eicher. His shot never gave Pavlick a chance to save.

The gate receipts went to the convention fund of the West Penn Football Association. The local governing body will bid for the 1934 national convention in June. The lineup:

American—1.		Foreign—1.
D. Pavlick	G.	Henderson
Van Jura	R.B.	MacDonald
Urbanic	L.B.	Krampf
Chappie	R.H.	Gifford
Powell	C.H.	Jackson
H. Chislaghi	L.H.	Craig
Molly	O.R.	Zinger
McCoskey	I.L.	N. Cimmeroli
S. Cherokee	O.L.	Eicher

Score at half time—American 1-0. Referee—R. Boyle. Linesman—McArdle. Time of halves—45 minutes. Goals scored by Chappie, Eicher.

135-pound class—Frank Bailey, Sands A. C., defeated Patsy Green, Todd A. C., 3 rounds.

138-pound class—Jackie Fields, Charleroi A. C., defeated Sonny Boy Evans, West Newton A. C., 3 rounds.

128-pound class—Young Gizzy, Todd A. C., defeated King Edwards, Sands A. C., 3 rounds.

149-pound class—Andy Wassill, Sands A. C., defeated Jack Thompson, Todd A. C., 3 rounds.

LOCALS IN TOURNEY

The University of Pittsburgh chess team is in New York today to compete in the intercollegiate championship tournament, which will be concluded Friday. The Pitt players met the Y. M. H. A. last night.

EAST MAY LOSE CONTROL OF U. S. L. T. A.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Harry S. Knox, of Chicago, first vice president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, has been named by the nominating committee for president in 1933, the first man from the Mid-West to be so honored since Dwight W. Davis, donor of the international cup, was elected to the office in 1923.

Knox succeeds Louis W. Carruthers, of New York, president for two years, who declined to be considered for renomination because of the press of business interests.

CULMINATES REVOLT

The nomination is the culmination of a "revolt" by certain Eastern elements in the association and the Mid-West and Far-West organizations against alleged domination of U. S. L. T. A. affairs by the Eastern group which has held the presidency and other important offices without a break for nine years. The "revolt" was suppressed last year at the New Orleans meeting, but has been gaining headway since.

One concession was made to the "old guard" in the insertion of the name of Holcombe Ward, president of the Eastern Association, as first vice president ahead of Joseph W. Ivy, of Kansas, who was in line for promotion from the second vice presidency he held last year after being elevated from the post of secretary. Ivy was renominated for second vice president.

Lawrence A. Baker, of Washington, D. C., the "old guard" nominee of 1932 who defeated one of the insurgents, Paul W. Gibbons, of Philadelphia, for the secretaryship last year, was renominated for that post, and Walter Merrill Hall, of New York, was renominated as treasurer.

BROWN ADVANCED

Although there have been upsets at the convention in the slate of nominees, the vote generally follows the list as presented.

Wray D. Brown, of St. Louis, sub-chairman of this year's nominating committee, was nominated as chairman of that group in 1933, with Charles N. Beard, of Philadelphia; Capt. James H. Bishop, of Culver, Ind.; Dr. S. Ellsworth Davenport, of New York, and John Temple Graves, of Birmingham, Ala., as the other members.

GILBERT SETS WIN RECORD

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 27.—Young Johnny Gilbert has set a new modern record for riding winners in a single season, and has the 1932 jockey honors well in hand.

By riding three winning mounts at Jefferson Park yesterday, Jockey Gilbert set a new modern record by running his total for the year to 208 winners, surpassing the mark of 207 set in 1927 by L. Hardy.

Gilbert led the field with Drimbo in the third race, Justina in the fourth, and Jack Biener in the sixth. His closest rival for leading honors, Hank Mills, failed to add to his string of winners, and his total remained unchanged at 194.

Gilbert's feat is the best record created since Vincent Powers scored with 324 mounts in 1908. Walter Miller holds the world record of 388 winners, which he rode in 1906, out of a total of 1,384 mounts, many more than Gilbert has had this year.

Finland Asks Ban On Nurmi Be Lifted

BOSTON, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Karl A. Hilli, prominent in Finnish sporting circles, today said he had asked the American Amateur Athletic Union officials to call a special meeting to act on the reinstatement of Paavo Nurmi, Finnish running star.

Hilli has written to Avery Brundage, president of the American organization, asking for action and quoted Nurmi as having told him:

"No money is so great to make me turn professional."

Iso-Hollo and Virtanen, two Finnish distance runners and stars in the recent Olympic Games, are awaiting the official sanction of the government of Finland for a trip to America.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—American athletic authorities have nothing to do with the existing suspension of Paavo Nurmi from amateur competition, except as they may voice their views through the International Amateur Athletic Federation, it was pointed out today at the offices of the Amateur Athletic Union.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

TRADE RESISTS USUAL DOWN TREND

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Business draws toward the close of 1932 offering somewhat more resistance to the usual end-of-the-year tendencies toward contraction than at this time in the past two years.

An important factor has apparently been the pickup in automobile manufacturing as plants have accelerated output of 1933 models. Output, as estimated for the latest week, approximately 33,000 cars, against 23,000 in the preceding week, and less than 14,000 in the like period of last year.

COMMODITIES SAG

An adverse influence has been further recessions in commodity prices, carrying some index figures to new lows for the depression, slightly under the bottom levels of summer. The petroleum price structure has weakened, and prices of farm products have generally lost ground.

Nevertheless, the weekly reports of freight car loadings and electric power consumption have offered some grounds for encouragement. Car loadings, as reported for the week ended December 17, showed a recession of only 4,420 cars, which was substantially less than seasonal, and narrowed the gap from last year to only 11 per cent, the smallest of the year. The small decline was due principally to a sharp gain in the movement of coal, however, while the movement of manufactured goods was off substantially.

POWER OUTPUT UP

Electric power production, as reported for the same week, showed a seasonal gain substantially larger than in any of the last three years. Of course this was probably due to dark, stormy weather over much of the country. Nevertheless, it reduced the margin from last year to 6.7 per cent, compared with 9.1 per cent in the previous week. The comparison with last year was the best since the week ended November 12.

Estimates of the volume of holiday trade indicated that it was substantially under that of last year, although the more favorable shopping weather of the last week brought a last-minute rush, resulting in considerable upward revision of earlier estimates.

SCHOOL ADDS TO COURSE

In response to numerous requests of students and their parents, the Pittsburgh School of Accountancy has announced that its course in cost accounting will in the future be available in the day division as well as in the evening school, where it has been taught heretofore.

The course is being given in the Sophomore II day school class beginning in February, 1933. It has been successfully taught for the past three semesters in Pace Institute, New York City.

Twelve of the 20 periods of study per week will be devoted to cost accounting theory and practice, which will be taught by Dean G. F. Custer, C. P. A. The remaining eight periods will be divided equally between business law and advance economic problems.

Officials at the school report that enrollments for the new Sophomore II day division semester are already near to capacity.

Gets Rare Violin On Owner's Death

HARTFORD, Conn.—(INS.)—Joseph Shurley, violin maker, is the proud possessor of a violin made by Prezar Bonedeny in 1546. Failing to buy it from the late George W. Muller, tobacco dealer, during the past 50 years, Shurley on Muller's death bought the instrument from a second-hand dealer, to whom Muller's estate had sold his furniture.

COPPER MARKET DULL, STEADY

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Copper held steady at the week-end at 5-cent basis influenced largely by the better tone of the European markets. Demand from abroad, however, dwindled after purchases of about 20,000 tons in recent weeks at advancing prices. Domestic inquiry continued particularly for second quarter delivery but business was hampered by firm views of sellers who were still asking ⅛c premium for that position. Some buying for automobile parts was noted but demand apparently failed to broaden sufficiently to allow producers to advance quotations. A trade estimate placed consumption in the United States at 300,000 tons annually against normal consumption of 730,000 tons.

Tin remained dull. Lead met improved demand from several large consumers for belated December requirements, orders for which had been held back, it was said, to test prices. Zinc was quiet and steady as consumers continued to hold down stocks but there was no indication of increasing offerings from smelters who look for a resumption of demand owing to the small volume of unfilled orders on books. Antimony quotations remained nominally unchanged.

More Changes Proposed In Statements By Banks

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

"YOU DIDN'T go far enough in your suggestions about changes needed in bank statements."

This statement was made by an official of a large corporation following the publication in this column on Thursday of a plea that banks be required to publish statements which have some meaning. This column pointed out that it is impossible to accurately analyze the position of a bank from statements as they are published at present. It was shown that classification of the types of loans made is necessary in order to gain some idea of the liquidity of a bank.

The executive who commented on this criticism of bank statements declared that the items showing holdings of United States government and other securities cannot be taken at their face value on many bank statements.

* * *

Pledged Assets Not Indicated

THE MISLEADING feature in the totaling of securities is due to the fact that many statements do not show the proportions of these securities which are pledged.

For example, a national bank may have a large amount of United States government securities. The depositor may assume that these can be sold or may be used as collateral for the bank to borrow money to meet an emergency, but, if they are pledged with the United States Treasury as security for the issuance of currency, they offer no protection to the depositor.

Deposits of municipal, county or state funds must be protected either by the bank providing a bond of a recognized surety company or by a pledge of government or other marketable securities. Securities pledged in this manner are isolated for the protection of particular deposits. They offer no protection to the individual depositor, but banks do not ordinarily show on their statements that these assets are sterilized so far as general obligations are concerned.

* * *

Statements Should Have Some Meaning

THE LEGAL provisions that state banking departments and the Comptroller of the Currency may call for banks to publish statements of their condition were placed on the statutes in order to give the general public some indication of the strength of banking institutions. As these statements are made at present, it is impossible except in the cases of institutions in abnormally liquid positions, to determine from the figures how much of a margin of safety exists.

Changes in the methods of presenting bank statements are needed to correct this situation.

PORK DEMAND EXPECTED SOON

Pittsburgh appetites, sated with Christmas turkey, turn every year to ham and pork for New Years, it was observed today by George A. Hess, president of the William Zoller Company, 1550 Spring Garden avenue, North Side.

For the past 28 years Mr. Hess has noted this and other interesting seasonal trends in the packing industry. He said:

"After Thanksgiving and Christmas, which are poultry seasons, there is a sharp demand for meats of the pork family. Many people, unable to afford fowls for the holiday table, invariably select pork as their next choice."

The retail price of meats is lower today than it has been in 40 years, Mr. Hess said. Electric refrigeration in the home has given the average housewife a tremendous economic advantage over women in previous generations in the buying of bulk meats.

Fresh meats may be kept for several days, either uncovered or in cellophane wrappers. Smoked meats, like ham and bacon, may be kept several weeks in excellent condition under modern refrigeration methods, Mr. Hess said.

Although meat-packing is not generally considered to be one of Pittsburgh's major industries, it ranks close behind steel, glass and electricity in Pittsburgh proper, which is considered the gateway to the East for fresh meats.

The William Zoller Company the only Pittsburgh owned government inspected packing house in the city, has been furnishing meats for tables within a radius of 400 miles of Pittsburgh for the past 80 years. Having no one but Pittsburgh district residents in its personnel, it has given employment and sustenance to several hundred Pittsburgh families for more than half a century, Mr. Hess continued:

"If Pittsburghers realized the advantage in freshness and quality of meats slaughtered and cured here, over those shipped in from remote places, employment of several hundred more Pittsburghers would be assured in the locally owned and operated meat packing industry, and the total payroll of all the meat packing industries in Pittsburgh would be increased from five to eight million dollars."

Can Today Buy For $470 What Cost $29,320

By B. C. FORBES

SOME SHARES are selling on the New York Stock Exchange today for fewer pennies than they were worth dollars in the boom.

Mr. Forbes

I have had compiled a list of stocks which were traded in at the week-end at $1 or less.

There were 72 such issues.

The total quoted price of 10 shares of each is today $470.

The total maximum price of 10 shares of each of these same stocks at the top of their 1928-1929 boom would have been $29,320.

THIS COMPILATION will astonish the country.

IT IS NOT the purpose of this column to suggest that "what has been may be." It is little likely that these stocks will again average their boom-time maximum—although even that is possible in this young, rich country.

The writer does believe that any person having the courage—and the means—to buy 10 shares or 100 shares of each and every one of these "penny" stocks will be able to pocket a very handsome profit within the next few years.

NATURALLY, A number of the companies will not be able to survive and their shares will become absolutely worthless. In other instances it may be necessary to pay assessments in order to continue as a stockholder.

But the chances all are that enough of these companies now selling for a song will outride the storm and see their shares selling at many times their present quotations.

PLEASE UNDERSTAND that these shares must not in any sense be regarded as investments. When stocks sell at a dollar or less, Wall street's name for them is "cats and dogs," meaning that they are to be regarded as risky gambles.

THIS TABLE constitutes an extraordinary commentary on this country's weakness for rushing to extremes.

STOCKS HOLD TO NARROW GROOVE

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Trading was resumed listlessly in the stock market today, as the holiday week-end failed to bring any new stimulus.

Stocks held to their narrow groove, but developed a somewhat heavy tone. Brokers reported some further selling and switching for tax purposes, but the volume of business was extremely light. Tobaccos were notably heavy, while oil shares did better than average.

Reconciled to a quiet period between the holidays, Wall street's attention was concentrated chiefly on the prospects for early 1933. It was pointed out that some pickup in industry seemed assured by resumptions after the year-end shutdowns, which should bolster sentiment. Nevertheless, the outlook for the new year was widely regarded, as the Guaranty Trust Company said in its monthly survey, as "more than usually clouded with uncertainty." But it added that prospects are undoubtedly better than they were a year ago.

Freigh car loadings continue to hold up reasonably well as the year draws to a close. Santa Fe, the first large system to report for the week ended December 24, showed 18,899 cars handled, against 20,230 in the previous week. Compared to last year, the decrease was 16.7 per cent, against 18.8 per cent in the week previously.

WHEAT PRICES FALL AGAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Setbacks in wheat quotations at Buenos Aires led to early downturns today in the wheat market here. Absence of rains in drought districts of domestic winter wheat territory southwest failed to act as an offset. Opening unchanged to ⅛ lower, Chicago wheat futures underwent an all-around sag later. Corn started at a shade decline to ⅛ advance and subsequently held near the initial range.

The Buenos Aires wheat market showed a drop to around 35 cents a bushel for February contracts, probably the lowest figures ever reached on an Argentine exchange. Unlike wheat, however, the Chicago corn market displayed firmness. Owing to reports of locust damage to the new corn crop in Argentina.

Wheat bulls pinned hopes on prospective better demand from domestic mills. There was talk also of likelihood of improved export call for Canadian wheat. In some quarters, possibilities of a downward revision of Canadian crop estimates were likewise given attention. Aside from bullish effects of reported severe injury to Argentine corn the Chicago market for corn and oats was upheld by persistent evidence that United States corn growers were withholding supplies.

Provisions went lower with hog values.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The bond market, as in recent sessions, followed a "high-grade low-grade" policy and price movements generally were highly conflicting. United States Government loans were again in demand, several of the treasuries stepping up to new year's peaks. French Government 7s recovered about a point and the 7½s improved. Italian 7s lost nearly a point and the Belgians, Argentines and some of the Germans firmed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States issues in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

MARY FAITH

Story of a Girl With Husband Who Wouldn't Grow Up

By BEATRICE BURTON

Kim's Mother Angers Him And He Takes Bride To Friend's Home

CHAPTER XVI.

Mrs. Farrell was sitting up in bed, eating milk toast from a large soup plate. She had on a pink wool hug-me-tight. Her cheeks were pink and Mary Faith thought she had never seen her looking so well.

Kim sat down on the edge of the bed.

"Well, mother, I'm sorry to find you sick like this." He reached for her hand, but she drew it away.

"I'm sorry about a few things myself," she said bitterly. "I'm sorry that you thought you had to sneak away to get married. . . . Just think of it—my only son telegraphing me to say that he had just been married! If that wasn't an insult, nothing was ever an insult!"

She shot a glance at Aunt Ella, who was standing at the foot of the bed beside Mary Faith.

"And your Aunt Ella helping you to deceive me!" She rapped the words out. "Turning her house over to you for your honeymoon without letting me know a thing about it! I'm sure I don't know what I've ever done that my own son and my own sister should treat me the way they have."

GIVES REASON

Kim's eyebrows came together in a scowl. He stood up and looked down at his mother, his hands in his pockets.

"You know why I didn't tell you I was going to marry Mary Faith, Mother," he said irritably. "Last fall we did tell you we intended to be married—and you kicked up such a row about it that this time we decided to get married first and break the news to you later—and the way you're acting now proves that we were right!"

His mother set her soup plate down on the table beside her bed before she answered him.

"Well, Kimberley, you never spoke to me like that before in your life," she said slowly and impressively. "But I'm not surprised. I knew things would be like this as soon as you brought that girl into the house. You know what they say—'My son's my son till he takes him a wife.'"

Mary Faith did not wait to hear any more. She turned and went quietly out of the room, closing the door of it behind her.

Kim's bedroom was at the end of the hall. She carried the suitcases into it and dropped down into a chair that stood beside the big black walnut bed.

It was a cold and comfortless sort of room. Between the windows stood a marble-topped dresser with a cloudy mirror hanging above it. The floor was painted chocolate-brown and there was a rug in front of the dresser and another one beside the bed.

LOTS OF CLOTHES

The door of the clothes closet stood open and within were Kim's suits, hanging in a neat row. His shoes stood on the floor beneath them.

Mary Faith walked across the room and looked at them . . . Ten pairs of shoes, not counting a pair of golf shoes and some straw bath slippers!

A curtain rod was tacked on the inside of the closet door and his neckties dangled from it. Neckties of every color and pattern. Polka-dotted ties, striped ties, black ties to be worn with his dinner jacket, wash-silk ties for summer wear. So many of them that Mary Faith couldn't begin to count them.

"He must have a hundred, though, easily," she was thinking when he came into the room.

"Aren't you the Beau Brummel," she began and stopped. His face was like a storm cloud and he had on his hat and overcoat.

"Come on—let's get out of here," he said gruffly. "We'll drive around and see if the Maldons are at home. I could stand a little cheerful conversation for a change, couldn't you?"

KIM ANGERED

Mary Faith glanced down at the five suitcases piled in the middle of the floor.

"Don't you think we ought to stay here and get settled tonight? You'll have to get up so early tomorrow morning and you look awfully tired, Kim. That long drive up from Garretsville—"

"For the love of Mike, don't stand there arguing!" Kim interrupted her. "If you want to stay here, stay! But I'm going."

He turned and went, and Mary Faith followed him, getting into her coat as she flew after him. In silence they got into the car and in silence they drove down Wilton street.

The Maldons lived on the top floor of a tall apartment house that overlooked the east side of Haltnorth Park.

Kim pushed their doorbell five times and stood smiling to himself as he and Mary Faith waited for the door to be opened. The sound of soft phonograph music on the other side of the door stopped suddenly and then came Claire Maldon's voice: "Jack, that's Sandy Farrell's ring!"

The door was thrown open and she stood on the threshold, shaking hands with both of them at once.

"How grand to see you both!" She drew them into the room behind her, glowing at them. "Jack and I were just talking about you, wondering how soon you'd be back—and here you are!"

Jack Maldon came in from the kitchen. He had a bread knife in his hand and a tea towel was tied around his middle for an apron.

"Hello, you two tramps!" he greeted them, grinning. "Had your supper?"

LIKES APARTMENT

"No—what do you think we came here for?" Kim asked, grinning back at him. "You don't think we came up here because we give a darn about you, do you?" He was very much at home with them, helping himself to a cigar from a silver box on the mantelpiece, stretching himself out in a long red leather chair in front of the windows that looked down into the lamp-starred darkness of the park.

"Gosh, this is the greatest place in the world!" he said contentedly. "Mary Faith, don't you wish we had a little dugout like this?"

The flat consisted of four rooms—living room, bedroom, a tiny dining room called a "dinette," and a sparkling white-tiled kitchen.

Everything in it was new and bright and modern, from the electric icebox in the kitchen to the plate-glass door of the shower in the bathroom.

"What a lovely apartment this is, Claire," Mary Faith said, taking off her hat and coat in the bedroom, which was hung with rose Du Barry draperies and smelt of expensive perfume and cheap cigarets.

"We rented it furnished. It's not what I'd like to have, but it's an amusing little place," Claire answered. "We've bought a lot of things for it, of course."

REJECTS LIQUOR

"Amusing" described it perfectly. There was a radio in one corner of the living room and a phonograph in another. There was a small roulette wheel and a box of playing cards on a coffee table that stood in front of the blue velvet davenport. On one of the window sills was a Chinese brass bowl filled with poker chips and a miniature gambling game played with tiny iron race horses.

Claire set out a cold supper on the table in the dinette—chicken sandwiches, celery stuffed with Roquefort cheese, big brown ripe olives and an iced drink in amber glasses.

At first Mary Faith thought that it was cider and lifted it to her lips. Then, as the sharp odor of it struck her nostrils, she set it down. She glanced at Kim's half-emptied glass and saw that he was looking at hers.

"Claire, I forgot to tell you that the Little Woman is a teetotaler," he said. "She never takes a drink."

"Don't you? Honestly, Mary Faith?" Claire raised her eyebrows. "Not even a little highball, just to be sociable? These are terribly weak, my dear."

All the time she was talking she kept one shoulder moving ever so slightly in time to the music of the phonograph; and she held a cigaret in her left hand and a fork in her right as she ate.

Her fingernails were covered with some kind of scarlet polish that made them look like bits of carved red coral and her eyes were shadowed with blue-gray makeup.

There was nothing extraordinary about her slender, blonde prettiness. The remarkable thing about her was her electric quality—her crackling vitality.

She was never still a minute. When she wasn't talking or laughing she was humming under her breath. When she wasn't in the living room changing a phonograph record she was in the kitchen getting more ice or ginger ale or Roquefort cheese.

As soon as the supper things were cleared away she brought out a contract-bridge score and a deck of cards.

"Well, how about a little game for a tenth of a cent a point?" she asked them in her fresh pretty voice. "Just enough to make it zippy."

Kim shot a questioning glance at Mary Faith and she gave her head a little shake.

"Sorry, Claire," he said, "but Mary Faith is a regular Puritan. She wouldn't play cards on Sunday if her life depended on it."

Claire put the cards back into their box.

"Why aren't you funny, Mary Faith!" She stood looking at her with wide eyes. "I didn't know anybody was as old-fashioned as that any more! . . . Sandy plays cards on Sunday. He's done it right here in this flat lots of times. Haven't you?"

She turned away from Mary Faith and walked up to his chair.

"Get up, Lazy," she said to him, "and dance with me."

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Saves $2. No Cooking! So Easy!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a purer, more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs about one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up obstinate coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly, and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, clearing the air passages, and soothing away the inflammation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

After the distribution of the Christmas stockings Saturday at the Cameraphone Theater, the members joined Santa Claus around the Christmas tree and sang Christmas carols. They sang "Jingle Bells" and "Silent Night."

The entertainment was furnished by the pupils of the Florence Dunn School of Dancing and the opening number was a song by the entire assembly. Following this Vera Krumm offered an acrobatic dance and Dorothy Rush sang "Mi-mi" and ended with a tap dance.

Adele Yorio, favorite with the members of the Cameraphone Chapter, next offered a classical waltz, which brought rounds of applause from the youngsters in the audience.

Mercedes Brinker's toe strut was followed by Ruth Gordon doing a Magarka dance. This is somewhat on the order of a Russian Cossack dance and it was well liked by the members.

Vera Krumm then returned to the stage after changing her costume and offered a fast military toe dance. Dorothy Rush then sang the theme song of the feature picture which played at the Cameraphone Theater Saturday. It was "All-American Girl."

Irene Tiegel and Irene Reardon followed with a duet toe dance and Mercedes Brinker and Adele Yorio closed the stage show with a song and dance.

Following the stage show, the members joined in singing such songs as "A Shanty in Old Shanty Town," "I Just Couldn't Say Goodbye," "My Mom," "Please," "Somebody Loves You."

Boys and girls who are not members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club don't realize the amount of fun they are missing each Saturday at the regular meetings and many of them don't know how easy it is to join. Follow these few simple rules and you'll become a member.

Send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend, to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be sent to you free.

Isn't It So?

A few are wise, but most are otherwise.

Getting tired is the easiest thing for some people to obtain.

All men are equal—after an economic depression.

All the world's a stage—with each actor crowding for a place in the spotlight.

Even if we don't enjoy a particular luxury, we like to have it to make other people envious.

Few men are able to appreciate the humor of a practical joke that comes at them point first.

A hick town is one that is out of debt, has money to meet future bills and pays its school teachers.

It's a Meal Anyway

One thing about the newspaper game is that you never know where you are going to eat your Christmas dinner.

It's generally at your desk with the mice waiting for the second table.

Looking back through the long whiskered years we remember vague details about Christmas dinners which were very free lunchy and startlingly alike.

Our lists of hosts are names that are dignified memoirs in Philadelphia, Washington and New York.

Probably, the finest were served at the old half-mile track in the Ebbitt House, D. C. The lunches there were the remains of the dinner in the main dining room. You not only got some very fine hunks of turkey, but once in a while you found a gold tooth.

Coming up the hill from Fourteenth and Pennsylvania avenue we could look in the dining room and see what we were going to have later on in the bar. When we piped a venerable old senator picking birdlike on a big steak we would look through the window and throw a Gypsy curse on him. While the free lunch was palatial there was always a dearth of red and prepaid meats.

By insulting the diner with ribald remarks and mysterious gestures we figured we could spoil his appetite. It never worked. But they can't deport a citizen for trying.

Our first Christmas dinner in New York was in Hitchcock's government roach preserves, Beans, ham and coffee. And a slab of pie was a cornerstone we always enjoyed dedicating. It was as heavy as a bridge anchorage and made you walk like a cowboy after his hoss had been killed by the Indians.

Christmas dinner at the desk is no good. It's the reason why editors and reporters have eyes that look like plugged keyholes. But there's thousands of the boys eating there today and wondering what a Christmas tree looks like with the lights on.

New British infantry uniforms have open-neck shirts and plus-four trousers.

Which is just about the biggest stride toward disarmament thus far accomplished.

Nobody's going to fight a guy who wears an open-neck shirt and plus-fours. He'll try, if possible, to avoid him.

However, the English usually know what they are doing. Perhaps they have a sinister plan to equip the infantry with ukuleles.

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

Loyal Citizens Have Solemn Duty to 'Buy American'---Home Industries And Home Labor Must Be Protected, National Prosperity Restored

ARE YOU A GOOD AMERICAN?

Have you your country's interests at heart?

Are you moved by the distresses of your fellow-citizens—twelve million of them unemployed—by the collapse of industry, the decline of trade, the spread of destitution, the halt of progress in your country?

If you are worthy of your birthright and your citizenship, you will recognize that a patriotic duty rests upon you—a plain and pressing duty.

AMERICANS MUST BUY AMERICAN GOODS—the products of American labor and American capital—TO THE EXCLUSION of any other goods, of any other products, of any other services, of any other labor—whatever part of the world they proceed from and at whatever price they are offered.

* * *

"BUY AMERICAN" must become A NATIONAL SLOGAN. It must be accepted as a patriotic duty by all loyal Americans, rich and poor, old and young.

It is a policy of rescue and recovery—a program of defense and national salvation.

AMERICAN GOODS CANNOT BE PRODUCED UNLESS THEY ARE BOUGHT.

If the buying power of Americans is suffered to exhaust itself in the purchase of foreign goods, it is obviously diverted and withdrawn from the support of American trade and manufactures.

The extent to which this has been done in the past, AND NOTHING ELSE, has closed down many of our factories. If not stopped, it will close down many more, with the tragic sequel of casting countless workers out of employment, and depriving those already unemployed of all hope of regaining life-sustaining work.

This in turn means the progressive shrinkage of American buying power and the spread of business collapse, with the swiftness of a contagion, from one industry to another.

* * *

THE American home market has carried the country through many a crisis.

It is the richest and the biggest market in the world. If intelligently safeguarded and sensibly utilized, it will not only lift the United States out of the depression, but it will lead the way to world recovery.

It is a current saying abroad that world prosperity will not return until America is prosperous again.

But we are not utilizing our home market with intelligence. We are not guarding it against invasion.

We are permitting our natural and inherent strength to be wastefully dispersed.

We are ignoring the fact that forty other nations have been unable to maintain their currencies on a parity with our own.

Their labor, paid in paper currency of diminished value, is relatively much cheaper than American labor.

With a lowering standard of living and a wage scale incredibly beneath our own, the countries of Europe and Asia are able to land their manufactured wares in the United States, regardless of the duties levied by our protective tariff, at prices with which American producers and dealers cannot compete.

* * *

THE number and variety of articles imported from abroad and sold in competition with domestic products are beyond the people's realization.

Rubber boots, rugs, pocket knives, gloves, electric light bulbs, crockery, canes, silk goods, buttons, canned foods, garments of wool and cotton—almost everything of common and daily use—as well as basic commodities such as steel, lumber, wood-pulp and other raw materials, are brought into this country despite the existing tariff and sold in open and ruinous competition with American labor, materials and products.

Every American dollar spent for these importations is a dollar diverted from American industry and American labor.

It aggravates by just so much the distressful conditions that afflict the people of the United States.

It means an addition of just so much to the burden of relief resting upon public and private charity.

IT MEANS AN ADDITION TO THE NUMBER OF UNEMPLOYED. It deepens the depression. It delays recovery. It impairs the strength and dims the hopes of the nation.

IT MUST STOP.

* * *

THE flexible provisions of the present tariff law are not flexible enough to keep pace with forces operating to undermine us, such as the steadily depreciating currencies of both Asia and Europe, coupled with the growing effort to halt the purchase of our goods and exclude our exports.

THE DANGER MUST BE MET IN A SPIRIT OF PATRIOTIC UNITY BY THE AMERICAN PEOPLE THEMSELVES.

Let us take a leaf from England's course.

England often imitates us. We can afford in this case to pattern our policy upon that of England.

Confronted by growing unemployment, loss of foreign trade, the ever-present and constantly mounting dole, the impaired value of the pound, the dumping of cheap foreign goods in her home market, England decided to wait no longer for world conditions to right themselves.

She decided to concentrate upon her own dangers and her own problems, to summon her own inherent strength and to fall back upon English resources for the cure of English ills.

* * *

FIRST came the conference at Ottawa, with its far-reaching agreement by the Dominions and Great Britain to trade with themselves, and so far as possible to close the British market to non-British competitors.

This was nothing more nor less than an effort to gain for Great Britain something comparable to the advantageous position of the United States in its unrestricted and protected internal trade.

But this was not enough. England was confronted by precisely the conditions which the United States now faces from the invasion of her domestic market by cheap foreign goods.

There was no way to protect the English home market from the steady inflow of low-priced articles of continental and foreign manufacture, except to invoke the patriotic spirit of Englishmen.

This was done without hesitation, and today, from one end of the kingdom to the other, "Buy British" has become the rallying cry of a new determination and a rekindled self-confidence.

IT IS TIME FOR AMERICA TO DO LIKEWISE.

* * *

THE products of our manufacturers are superior to any in the world.

The skill of our craftsmen and artisans cannot be matched.

The variety and scope of our products—their beauty, utility and durability—cannot be equaled.

Let us buy them. Let us buy no other.

Let us with cheerful and voluntary unison, bring this great aid to our troubled country, to its languishing commerce, to our suffering fellow-citizens whose protracted unemployment we have it thus in our power, in large measure, to end or relieve.

"BUY AMERICAN" IS THE CLEAR AND INESCAPABLE DUTY OF EACH ONE OF US IN THIS HOUR!

It Should Be Vetoed

The Philippine Independence Bill Probably Is Unconstitutional, and Is Otherwise Objectionable.

Of the many and compelling reasons why President Hoover should veto the legislative monstrosity falsely entitled "A Philippine Independence Bill," these are the most imperative and the most outstanding:

1—This legislation is probably unconstitutional because it undertakes to bind the Congress that will be in power 10 years hence, and no Congress can constitutionally bind a succeeding Congress in a matter of this kind.

2—This legislation is of doubtful constitutionality because it undertakes to alienate American territory by majority vote of a Congress which has received no specific mandate from the people to exercise any such power on their behalf.

3—This legislation violates all the pledges thus far made by either of the two leading political parties in this country in that it does not provide either for an honest plebiscite in fulfillment of Republican pledges or unconditional independence in fulfillment of Democratic pledges.

But the most disgraceful and indefensible part of this lobby-ridden measure is the fact that it imposes upon the Philippine people arbitrary and unjust limitations on their trade with the United States before they get their independence, and requires them to submit to Washington for approval the constitution under which they must live for the next 10 years in order to get their ultimate independence.

Special interests, organized and directed by the representatives of American investors in Cuban sugar, are chiefly responsible for the passage of the Hare bill by the House, the Hawes-Cutting bill by the Senate, and the bill as agreed upon in conference, which includes the worst provisions in both the House and Senate bills.

No legislation before the present session of Congress is of more far-reaching importance to the United States and the world than that dealing with the future government of the Philippine Islands.

Only three times since the close of the Civil War has the United States taken action at all comparable in international importance with that involved in the Philippine legislation that will soon be before the President for approval.

These three acts were:

First, the Spanish War, with the subsequent establishment of an independent Cuba.

Second, the suppression of the Philippine insurrection, and the taking over of the Philippines—an act which gave to the United States the right to speak, as in its own house, on Far Eastern questions.

Third, the entry of the United States into the Great War, with the consequences that have followed.

For a "lame-duck" Congress, at a "lame-duck" session, after 45 minutes' debate in the House, and no debate worthy the name in the Senate, to fix the terms on which a republic of the Philippines shall be launched 10 years hence is a reflection on the intelligence and patriotism of the Congress and a challenge to the patriotism and intelligence of the President.

If the President is equal to his responsibility and wisely advised in its discharge, he will meet the challenge presented to him by the legislative monstrosity with a false title by promptly vetoing it. And a public sentiment based upon the sense of honor and sense of justice of the American people will compel the Congress to sustain the veto.

Tuning In—and Signing Off

Life loses its last drop of charm for a man only when he loses his last spark of curiosity about women, and his last grain of interest in romance.

* * *

Other countries may have their stray bachelors who are single by force of circumstances; but only in America will you find millions of single men who are bachelors by choice—and intend to STAY that way.

Men have three times the physical strength of women, declares a European scientist. No wonder! Think of all the strength they SAVE by always having some woman to pick up their clothes, sharpen their pencils, keep a record of their dates and think up their alibis for them!

* * *

The greatest friend to divorce is too much money. Poverty and hard work are the ties that bind! Not because the poor haven't the carfare to get away from each other, but because they haven't the leisure to be bored with each other.

* * *

A man used to break off a love-affair with tact and finesse; but, nowadays, he disentangles himself from a clinging woman with all the gentleness and patience he would employ in pulling off a piece of adhesive tape.

There is as much difference between an engagement and a marriage, in these uncertain times, as there is between an I. O. U. and a certified check.

The Mistletoe Signs Off

The mistletoe hangs overhead, inviting osculation;
But, like Othello, it has lost its ancient occupation!

* * *

They're petting on the big divan and cuddling on the chairs—
They're necking in the motor-cars, and courting on the stairs.

* * *

Once, lovers sought the mistletoe, to kiss beneath its bough—
But now they kiss 'most anywhere—and everywhere—and HOW!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—When night falls, New York throws open its doors to ambition. More than 100,000 students are enrolled in a half-hundred night schools or evening institutes. Many are men caught mid-life without professions as well as independent young wives with day-time jobs.

Here in studious cluster young men clutch at the golden opportunity. Too, there is a sprinkling of the aged who are tasting for the first time the superior joys of learning. The curriculum includes everything from bookkeeping to Greek literature.

Such schools open at 8 o'clock, when movies and billiard halls fill. They are usually in poorer districts where outside streets are filled with a vague excitement. Since the increase of unemployment, the rosters are bigger than ever. Instead of grousing, many jobless improve themselves.

Sometimes results are astounding. An usher in a Broadway movie so mastered Spanish and commercial law in two years that he has been given a $10,000-a-year post in far-off Madrid. A washroom boy at the Commodore has become a senior clerk in a law office.

Now and then a young wife's career is blocked by a baby carriage. But in a few months she returns and completes her course. There are times when a hard-working husband may require four years to master a technical trade. Yet his patience is often rewarded by a larger pay envelope.

* * *

Manhattan has an army of neurasthenics expecting death nightly. Mostly rich and retired, they luxuriate in mansions on exclusive streets. They are a golden harvest for aristocratic M. D.'s with soothing voices. One venerable hypochondriac, who believes herself especially marked by the arch-angel, has had a nurse sit at her Murray Hill bedside for eight years. Incidentally, she sleeps like the proverbial log.

* * *

I lived for a brief space in a shabbily fashionable boarding house on the fringe of Murray Hill. "Paying guests" dressed for dinner and talked about foxes they once chased. The house was a venerable brownstone escape into discreet poverty. A single back room for two with three meals totaled $16 a week. It housed perhaps the last arbiter of swirling caped manners and focus of pitiful social aspirations—the star boarder. He was a fussy, throaty and retired English major, who topped his h's. Exiled in this wilderness of semi-poverty—while I was developing my famous arm reach—he carried out his noble tradition of being a snob.

* * *

The major was not without his facetious moment, however. There was a night when the entire boarding house remained sleepless through the neighborly blasts of an ambitious cornetist next door. At breakfast someone remarked: "Anyway he seems a finished musician." To which the major garrumphed: "If my aim is as accurate as my hope, he will be."

No one has scattered so many stars across the theatrical firmament or given so generously of his gifts as Gus Edwards. The list is too long to enumerate here. There is scarcely a benefit where Gus is not advancing a newer crop. He is not in need of charity by any means, but by all laws of economic compensation he should be enormous wealthy. He's far from that. And that's dear old Broadway.

* * *

Indeed, the only producer to beat the rap was Belasco. He sagaciously salted a million in government bonds during the era of greatest prosperity. Erlanger's millioned holdings almost vanished. Nearly all magnates flourishing in Mister Dave's time are bankrupt or on the brink of insolvency.

* * *

While the theater bags at the knees, there has been at least an upshoot for old-timers of the silent screen. Montague Love, at the Empire, gives the most realistic performance of a police inspector the town ever saw. A lesser role, it ranks in sheer artistry with the star. Elizabeth Young, attractive debutante actress, also gives stark dramatic poignancy to a difficult part in the same play.

Post card flirtation: "Sometimes I wish your name was Oddo so I could call you my palindrome." (It's all right. I looked it up.) And if she's trying to make me feel silly, she's a huge success.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Description

Soft hair, whereupon
The gold light gleams,
Cheeks flushed like dawn,
Eyes filled with dreams.

Lips red and full
And very sweet;
Voice, musical;
Small, dancing feet.

Old Time and Care
Will take, I know
The red-gold hair,
The breasts like snow.

Old Time will change
Her bright allure
To something strange
And wan and poor.

But when life chill
With twilight gleams,
Her eyes will still
Be brimmed with dreams!

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

You may be selfish in your efforts to claim the companionship of some friend who has advanced beyond your accomplishments.

Your persistence and the love this friend bears you may be responsible for his or her inability to reach greater heights.

Yes, you may be honest and honorable.

But there may be certain things about you or about your family that may react unfavorably upon your friend's advancement in prospect.

These certain drawbacks do not handicap you seriously, in your position, but your friend is working toward another goal and so you may, after all, damage him for the goal he seeks.

Your friend might be admitted to certain circles if it were not believed that that would mean taking you in too and some won't stand for it.

It is unfortunate if you cannot keep pace with your friend, but you need not hinder him and you won't drag him down if you understand and are really true.

WORDS OF THE WISE

It does not become poets to rail at one another like bread-women—Aristophenes.

It is the nature of mortals to kick a fallen man.—Aeschylus.

It is not necessary to retain facts that we may reason concerning them.—Beaumarchais.

Man, without religion, is the creature of circumstances.—Hare.

Text for Today That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.—John, i:9.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Are you a parent? And are you, at times, plenty peeved at the Younger Generation? Do you consider 'em a selfish, unreasonable, unreliable bunch of brats? Then here's something which may give you pause.

It's what that same Younger Generation thinks of YOU!

Did you ever stop to consider that, while you're piling up charges against the youngster, he may be drawing up a few indictments against you? He is. And some of them are far from complimentary—as the Parent-Teacher Association of the South Pasadena, California, Junior High School discovered, when they sent out a questionnaire entitled "IF I WERE A PARENT, HOW WOULD I TREAT MY CHILD?"

And did the youngsters tell them? Listen to a few of the answers:

IF I WERE A PARENT
I WOULD NOT—

Forbid children to do the things I used to do.

Harp on things that are bygones.

Swear in front of children.

Quarrel before children.

Act cross all the time.

Promise, when I do not intend to keep my promise.

Bribe to get children to do things.

Embarrass children by discussing them or showing them off before guests.

Nag.

Keep saying "Don't!"

Require older children to take younger ones with them.

Permit older children to pick on younger children or be bossy.

Spoil or favor one child.

Try to live children's lives for them.

Say "We did not do that in our day."

Call my son "sweetheart" or "darling."

Slap, strike or spank my children.

IF I WERE A PARENT
I WOULD—

Give an allowance, and stick to it.

Give children some liberty.

Put children on own responsibility, trust as far as possible, treat like grownups.

Give child a separate room if possible.

Allow children to go to shows oftener than I can.

Teach my children to think for themselves and have own ideas.

Practice what I preach.

Be sympathetic (especially fathers).

Plan fireside talks.

Talk difficulties over with children before making a decision.

Co-operate with my children in the things they are doing.

IF I WERE A PARENT
I WOULD REALIZE THAT THESE THINGS MAKE UNHAPPY HOMES—

Outsiders in the home.

Parents away nights, so child has no one to help him with homework.

Mother has to work.

Some parent's ideas are funny.

Mother belongs to too many clubs.

No brothers or sisters.

No place to study.

Household servants boss children.

Youngsters are ornery—so you think. But are they the only ones who are ornery?

Here are the conclusions of scores of youngsters who come from "nice families" and possess intelligent parents. Read their conclusions over.

Certain conditions "got their goat." Wouldn't they get your goat, if you had to cope with the same conditions in the office or lodge room; or even in your own home?

Certain other demands seemed just and fair. Wouldn't they seem just to you? Don't you feel entitled to such privilege and consideration in your own life?

YET HOW OFTEN DO YOU DO TO YOUR CHILD THE THINGS THAT WOULD MAKE YOU FURIOUS IF DONE TO YOU?

AND HOW OFTEN DO YOU DENY TO YOUR CHILD THE THING WHICH YOU, YOURSELF, REGARD AS YOUR ESSENTIAL HUMAN RIGHT?
